Only 1 Man Found Alive In Tragedy

Buenos Aires —(A)—An Argentine airliner with 52 persons aboard crashed into the Atlantic ocean last night off the seaside resort of Mar Del Plata. Only one survivor was found.

Almost four hours after the vacation flight crashed a man was found alive on the beach, his clothes burned or ripped off. All others on the twin-engine plane apparently perished. Only three bodies were recovered in pre-dawn darkness.

Searchers who were hampered by stormy waters said many of those in the plane presumably were trapped inside and drowned.

Among those on the passenger list were Eduardo Braun Menendez, one of Argentina's most famous scientists, and Dr. Jose Mezzadra, another well-known scientist.

On Special Flight
The plane belonged to Austral Airlines, a new company known throughout the country for its penguin trademark because of flights to Argentina's cold and bleak southland.

The airliner was on a special summertime vacation flight from Buenos Aires to Mar del Plata, 240 miles to the south, and then to Bahia Blanca, another 280 miles west.

It was coming in for a landing at Mar del Plata in windy and rainy weather when it smashed into the ocean about 150 yards from shore.

The airline said it carried 47 passengers and a crew of 5. The line did not believe any foreigners were among the passengers but it could not be sure since they were not listed by nationality.

Engines Failed
One eyewitness said he heard the plane's engines fall just before the crash.

A caretaker at a resort park said the plane apparently developed trouble as it came down for a landing, tried to regain altitude and then plunged into the sea. He said he heard a terrific explosion.

This was the first fatal crash for Austral and the second major crash in South America this week. A West German Lufthansa Constellation crashed near Rio de Janeiro airport Sunday, killing 36.

4 White Men Beat Alabama Negro

Seima, Ala. —(A)—A 50-year-old Negro is recovering from a beating he said he suffered at the hands of four white men who left him unconscious in a swamp.

Israel Page, father of eight children, told officers he was forced from his home Thursday night, beaten with a pistol and a rubber hose and left in a swamp about 35 miles from his home.

Child's Call Leads To His Dead Mother

Milwaukee —(A)—"Get help—mommy doesn't answer me," a childish voice pleaded yesterday.

A telephone operator checked the source of the call and sent police to the William Wickert home where officers met two boys, William, 7, and Daniel, 4.

William, who had made the call, explained his mother had gone shopping and on her return said, "Hi," and fell down. Officers found Mrs. Lorraine Wickert, 27, face down in the living room, a bag of groceries on a footstool beside her.

A medical examiner's post mortem revealed she died of a rheumatic heart condition she had had for a number of years.

Castro Sets Executions at Total of 450

Calls for Huge Havana Rally to Approve Action

BY LARRY ALLEN

Havana —(A)—Fidel Castro estimates that 450 persons will die before the current wave of executions ends in Cuba.

Already 205 persons have been reported shot on charges of crimes against the people during the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista. Cuban prisons recently held an estimated 5,000 to 6,000 more for trial on similar charges but some have been released and others given jail terms.

Castro gave his estimate to a crowd of about 10,000 in front of the presidential palace last night. He called for a rally of half a million persons in Havana next Wednesday to signify approval of the executions.

Cubans Approve
The Cuban people generally have applauded the trials and executions. Police broke up 200 persons in front of a police station yesterday demonstrating for lynching of one suspect.

The actions have aroused sharp criticism in the United States and other countries, however. Castro invited foreign newsmen and diplomats to attend the trials to check their fairness.

Newspapers in Brazil, Peru, Ecuador, Argentina and Costa Rica have called for a halt to the bloodshed. The Uruguayan representative to the United Nations appealed to Provisional President Manuel Urrutia to stop the killings. Other Latin American delegates at the U.N. reportedly are planning a similar appeal.

U.S. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) suggested in Washington that Castro invite U.N. observers to check the trial and execution methods.

Some U.S. and Cuban businessmen and industrialists are paying advance taxes to help the revolutionary government, the New York Times reported. A dispatch from Havana said a treasury official estimated about $3 million had been paid in advance in recent days.

Report ROK Law Shocks Envoy

Seoul —(A)—A Seoul newspaper quoted U. S. Ambassador Walter Dowling today as expressing shock over the way a controversial new South Korean security law was enacted.

Dowling left by plane for Washington yesterday to advise the state department on sharp political tensions aroused by the law which permits imprisonment of newsmen for criticizing high officials. The law also provides prison terms for persons distributing false information.

The Korea Times, an independent English language daily, and its sister Korean paper Hankook Ilbo said its correspondent interviewed Dowling en route from Seoul to Tokyo.

The dispatch said Dowling hoped a political compromise would permit revision of the law which went into effect Thursday.

Ike and Mikoyan Meet To Consider Problems

Points of Dispute Between East and West were on the agenda when President Eisenhower and Anastas I. Mikoyan, deputy premier of the Soviet Union, met today at the White House. Also present at the talk are Sec. of State John Foster Dulles; Mikhail Menshikov, standing center, Russia's ambassador to the U. S.; and Llewellyn Thompson, left rear, U. S. ambassador to Russia.

Visitor Has No Comment On Session

Washington —(A)—President Eisenhower met with Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan today for a discussion of east-west differences, including Berlin, the division of Germany and disarmament.

Mikoyan arrived at the White House about two minutes before his 9 a. m. appointment time. He was met by Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary. Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov and translator Oleg Troyonovsky accompanied Mikoyan.

Goodpaster was waiting outside, in subfreezing but sunny weather, to receive Mikoyan at the White House door. They shook hands and Mikoyan murmured a barely audible "good morning" in English.

As Mikoyan walked through the White House lobby he had no comment other than a good morning for dozens of newsmen gathered there for the meeting.

Before the meeting with Mikoyan the president got a half hour briefing from Sec. of State Dulles.

Dulles arrived at the White House as scores of uniformed policemen were deployed in the streets around the White House as a security precaution.

Pickets Block Away
A dozen or so pickets paraded a block away from the White House as the conference went on inside the executive mansion. Mikoyan probably did not even see the placard-carrying pickets.

The pickets said they were just plain American citizens who had gotten in touch with each other and decided to make a protest.

"We censure our patriots; we dine our enemies," one sign read, apparently in reference to many dinners given for Mikoyan.

"No red carpets for reds," read another placard. A squad of motorcycle policemen accompanied Mikoyan and his party on their short drive from the Soviet embassy to the White House.

For Mikoyan the meeting was the climax of the spectacular tour which has taken him around the United States making public and private speeches, selling the Soviet "peace" line and pleading for trade and better relations, during the past two weeks.

Molinaro Expected to Back Withholding Law, Sales Tax

Democratic Assembly Speaker Has Own Ideas on State Finances

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison —The tax program that will be devised by the new Democratic state administration is the principal topic of conjecture in state capital circles as the new legislature settles down to its biennial tasks.

But the top Democrat in the Legislature has some notions of his own that are likely to be consulted in the final decisions.

Molinaro
Assemblyman George Molinaro, Kenosha, of the Democratic-controlled assembly, wants a payroll withholding law for the collection of the state income tax. Moreover, he is "willing to consider" any sales tax bill that will provide some form of relief for other tax burdens, such as the property tax or the personal property tax.

Relieve Local Taxes
Molinaro's remark about the sales tax may suggest that the new Democratic rulers may be less rigid in their position on tax policy than has been assumed. Generally the party has opposed the sales tax, in any form. Molinaro's position apparently reflects a realization in some quarters that property tax burdens are growing heavy enough to reduce some of the traditional resistance to the sales tax alternative in liberal circles.

The Kenosha politician has been the spokesman for the legislative Democrats on state finance questions, as their only representative on the legislative joint finance committee for several sessions. He will name the Democrats to the 1959 finance committee who will control its deliberations and its conclusions about finance policy.

Molinaro is a friendly, smiling person who is obviously proud of his advance in public life in spite of his humble origins. He is the son of Italian immigrants and eldest in a family of 10 children. Several of his brothers are in the service.

South Bend, Ind. —(A)—Waning snow squalls speeded South Bend's job of digging out of the mountainous drifts whipped out of a 17-inch snow today.

Forecasters of clearing skies and a weekend break in the zero cold promised easing of the traffic hazards in snow-glutted St. Joseph county and on ice-dotted roads across Indiana.

An all-night battle against the snow opened most of South Bend's busiest streets, with huge stacks of moved snow forming divider strips in the middle.

Countless cars remained stalled on drifted side streets, and only a few county roads were passable in the South Bend area this morning. State police reported U. S. 20 passable again from South Bend west to New Carlisle.

1 Dead, 1 Missing When Hotel Burns Down in Florida

Stuart, Fla. —(A)—One unidentified man was burned to death and another was missing and presumed dead in an early morning fire at a downtown hotel today.

Seven of the nine registered guests got out of the 2-story 40-room Commodore hotel but Coroner Jimmy Peagram said other persons might have been trapped in the building.

The missing man was George Jackson, 31, a bartender. He was last seen in his room and refused to leave, according to witnesses.

Robert King, 23, and Gene Panipinto, 23, of Rochester, N. Y., said they tried to get the hefty bartender out of his room but when he refused to leave they went outside and got a stepladder.

Panipinto said smoke was billowing from the room when he reached it from the outside and he believed Jackson was trapped inside.

The ruins of the 30-year-old hotel were still smoldering five hours after the fire broke out, but the fire was confined to the stucco over wood building. Loss was estimated at $100,000.

Peagram said the body of the unidentified victim was badly burned and identification would have to come through fingerprints.

Molinaro is a friendly, smiling person who is obviously proud of his advance in public life in spite of his humble origins.

He is the son of Italian immigrants and eldest in a family of 10 children. Several of his brothers are in the service.

Harvester Workers To Vote on Pact

UAW Delegates Okay Contract After Stormy 7-Hour Session

Chicago—(AP)—A new 3-year contract which would end a 2-month strike of 37,000 International Harvester Company employees is up for ratification this weekend by the rank and file of 33 United Auto Worker union locals.

The UAW Harvester council, made up of delegates from 33 locals at 15 Harvester plants and 10 depots and warehouses, approved the proposed contract last night after a stormy 7-hour session. The unofficial vote was 14,891 votes for the proposal and 12,562 against.

After the council session, Duane Greathouse, UAW international vice president and President Eisenhower Laughs Heartily at a quip by singer Perry Como during a picture taking session at the White House. Como was among representatives of Variety Clubs International who called on Eisenhower to make him an honorary member of the show business organization.

U.S. Trying to Detect Sneak Nuclear Tests

Underground Bombs More Difficult to Find Than Believed

Washington—(AP)—Despite a pessimistic study, the United States is trying to devise a detection system so effective it would discourage any nation from undertaking sneak nuclear tests.

A defense department spokesman made this announcement Friday in amplifying a recent report by the president's science advisory committee that detecting and identifying underground tests is more difficult than previously believed.

The spokesman gave no details of what type of system might be under consideration. But he told a news conference that one obvious way of improving detection and differentiating between a nuclear test and an earthquake would be to establish many detection stations.

Earlier this week, Dr. Hans Bethe, a leading nuclear scientist, told reporters that seismologists—the men who study earthquakes—had some very good ideas of how to solve detection problems.

Bethe, who spoke out after testifying at closed hearings of the senate-house atomic energy committee, didn't elaborate beyond saying he believed a satisfactory detection system could be achieved.

Last August, an east-west technical conference at Geneva announced studies indicated up to 90 per cent of underground nuclear tests could be distinguished from earthquakes.

This conclusion was challenged by the president's advisory committee.

In spelling out details of the committee's findings, the Pentagon spokesman said yesterday that 16 specially installed seismographic stations were used to monitor three underground tests conducted in Nevada last October.

head of the union's Harvester department, and William J. Reilly, manager of labor relations for Harvester, signed the new pact. The strike began Nov. 13.

Members of local unions are voting today and tomorrow on whether to ratify or reject the agreement. Reilly told newsmen "we sincerely hope and believe the agreement will be ratified by the local unions so that they can return to work next week."

Reilly also announced a company-union agreement which will give any worker needing it a $50 advance in wages, to be repaid beginning in March.

Chicago Accepts
In the council balloting, Chicago locals voted 8-2 to accept the pact. Some 12,000 of the strikers are employed in four of the big farm implement firm's plants.

The results of the balloting—an unofficial tally—were announced by Herman Rebhan, UAW international representative in Chicago.

In approving the new contract, the Harvester council spurned a recommendation from its 18-man negotiating committee which on Wednesday had accepted the Harvester proposal and then, critical at what it termed premature talk of a settlement by company officials, voted to seek rejection of the pact.

Union officials said more than 27,000 ballots were cast in the council voting, but that about 10,000 of the firm's 37,000 employees had been laid off before the strike began because of the seasonal slack and those 10,000 were not represented in the balloting.

Says It's Sellout
Before yesterday's council session, one member of the UAW negotiating team spoke bitterly about the pact which he termed a sellout. The unnamed official said the Harvester settlement was the result of pressure from the Detroit office of UAW President Walter Reuther.

The proposed 3-year contract calls for annual pay increases of 6 cents an hour or 2 1/2 per cent annually, whichever is greater. Under the old contract wages averaged $2.55 an hour.

Under the new contract agreement 4-week vacations will go to workers with 25 years service. Also, premium pay will remain at 10 per cent of wages paid in the old contract. Wage increases granted in the new pact will not be used in computing premium pay.

Two chief company demands were incorporated in the agreement. They are: summer vacation shutdown for inventory purposes and freezing night time premium pay.

Court Approves $30,000 in Contracts For 7-Year Old Star

Santa Monica, Calif.—(AP)—Superior court Friday approved a 7-year film contract under which Carol Lynley will make two pictures a year for 20th-Century Fox at $15,000 each.

Miss Lynley lives in New York and goes to school there. She'll commute between New York and Hollywood for her film work.

The contract will permit her to do limited stage and television work. The court here ordered her to save 20 per cent of her earnings.

3 Seize $14,000 in Supermarket Holdup

New York—(AP)—Charles Tellalian, manager of an upper east side supermarket was just settling the time lock on the door last night to close for the day when a gunman shouldered his way into the store.

"Get into the back of the store and nobody will get hurt," the gunman said. Two henchmen moved in behind him.

Tellalian led the trio past two clerks into a rear office where the store's safe is kept. "Open it," the handit leader growled.

Tellalian, understand a bit nervous, fumbled at the dial. "Take it easy," the gunman said, "take your time."

After 10 minutes, the manager was calm enough to work the combination.

The safe contained $4,000 in coins and $10,000 in bills. Appropriating two cardboard cartons, the thieves dumped the money in them—warned the employees not to follow—and walked out with the loot.

Electricity for Space Flights

No Batteries Used In New U. S. Device

BY FRANK E. CAREY

Washington—(AP)—An atomic device with no moving parts and small enough to be tucked in a handbag may ultimately help provide the electricity to help man survive in space.

This was one result forecast today of a new method to provide power over long periods without the aid of batteries.

The new development, hailed by the atomic energy commission as "highly significant," was announced yesterday at the White House.

Possible Uses
Col. Jack Armstrong, deputy chief of the AEC's aircraft reactor division, today predicted such batteryless power might also be used in the future to:

Provide electricity for instruments in large, unmanned satellites for long periods of time; furnish shelter heat and power for communications and weather instruments in remote areas like the Arctic and Antarctic; provide new types of navigational aid for air and sea traffic; and allow use of radio-controlled beacons which might forecast the development of hurricanes.

The device employs radioactive polonium 210 as a heat source and chemicals which convert the heat into electricity without any moving parts.

The AEC calls it Snap 3—short for system for nuclear auxiliary power.

The development at present consists of a 5-pound device, 4 1/2 inches in diameter and 5 1/2 inches high—somewhat resembling a ship's barometer. Officials estimate the weight could be cut to three pounds.

May Cost $200 Each
The model cost $15,000. But AEC spokesmen say it probably could be turned out on a production basis for about $200 per unit.

Technicians for the AEC, which sponsored the development, said the device is the most efficient for its particular purpose known to exist anywhere—including Russia.

The device is designed primarily for use as a vastly longer lasting substitute for batteries in space satellites. Armstrong told a reporter it "is more efficient by a factor of 16 or 20" than any known device in producing what is known as the molelectricity—that is, electricity from heat.

How It Works
AEC officials gave this explanation of Snap 3 and how it works:

The device itself is V-shaped. One leg consists of two pieces of lead telluride and each is treated with a bismuth material which causes the leg to be deficient in electrons.

The other leg consists of two sections—one of magnesium telluride and the other of lead telluride. This leg is treated with sodium in such a way that it has a surplus of electrons.

When heat is applied by the radioactive polonium the electrons try to re-assort themselves so that those on the surplus side will go over to the deficit leg. This flow of electrons is electricity—which can be tapped by means of wires.

The AEC isn't talking, however, about the exact process involved in the re-assortment of electrons or what keeps it going indefinitely.

Train, Truck Collision Kills One in Houston

Sheets of Flame Envelope Wreckage, Driver Dies

Houston, Texas—(AP)—A crack northbound passenger train collided with a truck loaded with steel rods in a flaming crash at a prairie crossing yesterday, killing the truck driver and injuring 23 train passengers and crewmen.

Sheets of flames enveloped the twisted wreckage of the truck and licked at passenger cars as the Rock Island railroad's "Twin Star Rocket" slowly screeched to a halt.

Eight of the 10 passenger cars jumped the track but remained upright. A baggage car came to rest on its side.

Flames and the steel bars weighing thousands of pounds trapped the truck driver, Ray Dawson, 45, Dallas, in the wreckage of the vehicle. He died before being pulled free.

The train made up in Houston and had left Union station only minutes before on a run to Minneapolis by way of Fort Worth, Dallas and Kansas City. A spokesman for the railroad said it normally carries about 140 passengers.

Most of the injured suffered only cuts and bruises. None were believed in critical condition.

Humphrey's Report
Among these reports was word from Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) that Mikoyan had said Russia would be willing to discuss withdrawal of its troops behind a line 500 miles east of the Elbe river in Germany if the western powers would discuss withdrawal of forces 500 miles to the west.

While such a proposition has never been put forward formally by the Soviet government, it represents a form of disengagement in Europe which Moscow has suggested in different ways on numerous occasions for several years.

What Are Political Campaigns For?

Gov. Nelson told the members of his party at the inaugural banquet that they, Wisconsin's Democrats, now have the job of explaining Wisconsin's fiscal problems to the people.

He said that public understanding must be gained before legislation is possible. Securing this understanding, he said, is a job for the party members who just won a statewide election in November.

The governor is perfectly right, of course, in insisting on a campaign to inform the people. That is always the correct thing to do and it is certainly a necessary part of any legislative campaign. However, the question comes up as to why a campaign is necessary to inform the people now. We have just gone through months of campaigning in which it was assumed that the candidates were telling the people what they were going to do if they were elected.

During the campaign candidates for the state offices on both Republican and Democratic tickets were on the stump talking for months. They flooded the press with releases, presumably intended to inform the people of the issues before them. They were on radio and television with the same story. They were hammering away in a lively fashion on a wide variety of subjects. But now, after all that talk, the fiscal policies of the state still need explanation, according to the governor.

It is not our intention to lay this burden entirely on Gov. Nelson or the Democratic candidates. The fact is that the same failure to discuss the fiscal policies of the state was a feature of the previous gubernatorial campaign when William Proxmire and Vernon Thomson were the candidates. Both of them refused to admit that there was a fiscal problem that could not be solved by use of the present laws and both declared without any detailed discussion of the matter that they would veto any sales tax that was offered. This ban on discussion of the state's fiscal problems carried over into the campaign which resulted in Nelson's election. To his credit it must be said that he indicated he had some reservations about this type of campaigning, but he was apparently overruled by the other candidates and supporters who declared that the way to win an election in Wisconsin was to refuse to consider seriously any possibility of a sales tax.

It may be that the present Democratic administration can solve the state's fiscal problems without resorting to a sales tax. We sincerely hope they can. A sales tax is not a thing that anyone desires but rather a device for raising money which may be necessary on some occasions. If the members of the Democratic party are going to explain the fiscal problems to the people it is possible that they will have to give some attention to new forms of taxation. We are sure that the people will want to know all about the different kinds of taxes and how they compare. It is regrettable that this type of discussion was not carried out on the stump, but it is never too late to present facts. It is to be hoped that the Democrats who undertake to explain the state's fiscal problems to the people understand the matter themselves and are willing to face the facts and talk about them frankly.

The Cost Is High

The decision by a federal judge that refusing to admit Negro students to a Georgia state college is discriminatory and unconstitutional brought about the halting of registrations in all public colleges in that state. As far as the next semester is concerned this will make little difference, as the enrollments have been pretty well filled. But what of the future? Is another generation of students in the south, both white and colored, to be denied educational facilities?

The diehards may appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court but this will only buy a little more time. Past decisions of the highest court have made it clear that barring students from public schools purely on the basis of race or color violates the Constitution. Nor can obvious evasive restrictions be set up. The court has accepted, in cases in Alabama, the placement of pupils according to educational ability and background, and has accepted to some extent the effect of certain pupils on a school as a standard of admission. But such tactics obviously will not be permitted to stop eventual integration.

Georgia authorities never have made any bones about using race or color as a restriction. The state's elected officials have campaigned on the stand that there will never be a mixing of the races in the public schools. We have sympathized with southerners, both white and colored, on the matter of segregation. It is not a problem to be solved overnight and the habits of a region, set for generations, should not be wiped out immediately. The results would be only more violence, a breaking down of school standards and, in some sections, near chaos.

But the rigid opposition to eventual integration is beginning to appear more and more as a political fingernail hold. Integration should come gradually, preferably first at the college level with a limited number of high-ability Negroes. The schools could be separated according to sex if the southern fear of intermarriage is the biggest stumbling block. Ability qualifications could lead to some new ideas in educational circles all over the country.

But closing down public schools, as has been done in some counties of Virginia and Arkansas and now occur in Georgia, means people most interested in their youngsters' educational welfare are likely to leave the state. It means college students will go elsewhere for study, and many of them won't come back. It means a lowering of standards in both homes and schools. At a time when the South is growing, industrially and financially, are its leaders willing to pay such a price for continued segregation?

Ammon Served Wisconsin Well

Ralph E. Ammon was born in Illinois and came to Wisconsin in 1922 when he was 20 years old. During most of the 37 years since that time he contributed greatly to the progress of agriculture in Wisconsin and might have gone on doing so for many years except for the heart attack which ended his life this week.

It is an important service to see the faults of those in charge of public business. Many persons are called on to perform this particular service but Ammon was one of those unusual fellows who could do more than criticize constructively. While he was in the newspaper business as farm editor of the Wisconsin State Journal and later as editor of the Brown Swiss Bulletin he criticized the operations of the Dane County fair so severely that the officials challenged him to take over the job and do it better if he could. He accepted the challenge and was such a success that within a short time he was promoted to manager of the Wisconsin State fair.

He served in that position from 1930 to 1942. During the 12 years he served as head of the state fair the attendance more than tripled. With the increased revenue he expanded the fair greatly, improved the exhibits and spent about $2 millions on the grounds and buildings.

In 1938 he was appointed agricultural director for Wisconsin. That was during the administration of Gov. Philip LaFollette. A year later he was reappointed under the Heil administration. He served both as fair manager and agricultural director until he left both offices in 1942. After leaving the state post he joined the Prairie Farmer Publishing company but shortly became president and general manager of a company operating amusement properties at the state fairsgrounds in Milwaukee and in Detroit. He was active in a great many other enterprises, most of them relating to the operation of radio stations and the publication of agricultural papers. He made a fine contribution to Wisconsin agriculture and he proved beyond doubt that it does make a difference who is the manager of most enterprises.

West Berlin Says No To Khrushchev Plan

From The New York Times

In what the communists themselves first characterized as a plebiscite, the voters of West Berlin have turned out in record numbers and with a "No!" that is heard around the world have given a crushing and even contemptuous answer to Premier Khrushchev's proposal to turn their citadel of freedom into a defenseless "free" city open to communist tyranny.

In all, 89.7 per cent of the eligible voters, more than ever before, took part in this, the only free election behind the Iron Curtain. Of these, 88.1 per cent voted for parties which, whatever their interparty rivalries, fought vigorously and unanimously against the Khrushchev plan. The only party that fought for it, with all the tonious the communist east could supply, was the communist party, and it polled 1.9 per cent of the total vote. That is even less than the meager showing it had been able to make in previous elections. The West Berlin vote explains why the communists are so set against free elections and why they demand that the fate of Berlin be settled not through such elections but through "negotiations" at the point of Khrushchev's guns. The pro-western victory was facilitated by the vigorous leadership of the energetic and popular Mayor Brandt, who scored a personal triumph and gained for his socialists an absolute majority. But, percentage-wise, the Christian democrats of Chancellor Adenauer gained as much, and between them the two big parties eliminated the smaller ones in the trend toward a 2-party system that is general throughout free Germany. Despite differences in tactics, Mayor Brandt sees eye to eye with Chancellor Adenauer in resisting communist encroachments and in calling on the west to stand firm in the defense of Berlin. Since his victory makes him a rising power in German socialism there is hope that the two big parties may arrive at a bipartisan foreign policy that will strengthen both free Germany and the west.

Peshigo One Of 41 Areas Hit By Holocaust

BY JACK RUDOLPH Post-Crescent News Service

On Oct. 8, 1871, a large part of Chicago was destroyed by fire. That same night, 50 miles north of Green Bay, the village of Peshigo was also wiped out with several times the loss of life suffered in Chicago. Yet for weeks thereafter the world, shocked by the Windy City disaster, was virtually unaware of the tragedy played in the "wings" while the Chicago "spectacular" held center stage.

But if Peshigo's press was initially bad, it has been amply rectified in the intervening nine decades. So amply, in truth, as to completely overshadow the fact that Peshigo's ordeal, however horrible, was only one incident in a great conflagration that swept over nearly 1,000 square miles of Northeastern Wisconsin with appalling loss of life and property.

First of a Series

Nearly everyone knows about the Peshigo fire. How many have ever heard of Williamsonville, the Sugar Bush, New Franken, Brussels, Walheim, Thiry Daems and Forestville. They were all destroyed, too, in the same holocaust.

Parallel Fires

The forest fire that obliterated Peshigo (actually, there were two parallel fires about 30 miles apart on both sides of Green Bay) also gutted the Door peninsula. Before it — or they — were drowned out by the rains that came 24 hours too late, an estimated 1,500 people were dead, as many were injured, 23 communities wholly and 18 more in part destroyed, and 11 million acres of majestic forest converted into a charred and blackened waste.

Northern Wisconsin is normally not subject to drought, but 1871 was an exception. For three months, from July 8 to Oct. 8, no rain fell in the pines. Week after week the relentless sun converted the forests into a vast, sprawling pyre, waiting for the spark to touch it off. Even the great Horicon marshes dried up that summer for the first and only time in memory.

Alton Street Residents Ask To be Heard

Editor, Post-Crescent: May Alton street be heard?

The homeowners in the east 900 block of Alton street have followed your news reports regarding the closing of Alton court with interest and vital concern. We too are a part of this decision since we are the last block of Alton street which dead ends in Alton court.

Last Tuesday, Jan. 6, a petition for closing Alton court was presented to the city clerk with 40 signatures of property owners on Alton court and Alton street. Seven of the nine homeowners in the 900 block of Alton street signed this petition. We were sadly disappointed to find no mention made of this in your Post-Crescent article.

The entire Alton court and E. 900 block of Alton street represent 15 families. Of this number only 4 families wish Alton court left open with access to College avenue and the new bridge. Our primary concern is the safety of our children. There are 33 children within this 2 block area described above. None of us can predict the

ON OCTOBER 8, 1871 THE WORLD WAS SHOCKED BY A FIRE THAT DESTROYED A LARGE PART OF CHICAGO...

In such conditions, forest fires were inevitable. For three weeks prior to the weekend of Oct. 7-8 they had been breaking out all over a region 70 miles wide and 100 miles long, from Lake Michigan to the Wolf River and north to Lake Superior. They had been contained but only by unremitting work. Men were on the verge of exhaustion from the effort.

All in Danger

By Oct. 1 every community from Appleton north was in imminent danger of destruction. Telegraph lines were down, the smoke was so dense that visibility in Green Bay was less than a block, and roads were blocked by burned bridges and fallen trees.

Trains kept running only by racing full throttle through blazing rights of way, and navigation on the lake and bay was possible only under fog conditions. Ashes fell like snow in the streets of every town, where special watches were organized to give the first alarm of fire.

On the night of Oct. 8 the blow fell. Thirty miles apart, on both sides of Green Bay, fires sprang up in the woods, gathered momentum and swept northward in racing walls of flame. In 24 hours they cut a swath through Peshigo on the west and the entire length of the Door peninsula on the east.

Forest fires are classified as ground, surface, or crown, depending on whether they burn under ground, along the surface or through the tops of trees. The twin Northeastern Wisconsin fires appear to have been basically crown fires, although they probably were a rare combination of all three.

Cloud of Flames

Everywhere in their paths the descriptions were the same. First there would be a dull rumble in the distance, rapidly coming nearer and increasing in volume until it sounded like the approach of a stampeding herd of freight trains. The first real warning was a quickly rising gale of hot wind, followed almost immediately by a cloud of flame bursting out of the forest like a gigantic furnace door suddenly blown open.

Fire literally shot out of the woods and rained from the sky in a shower of sparks and blazing tree tops. Buildings simply disintegrated in bursts of flame as if filled with gas and hit by a flame thrower. There was no defense against it and no escape.

The fire that destroyed Peshigo originated in what was known as the Sugar Bush, an oasis of hardwood in the vast stretch of pine forest between Oconto and Peshigo. The Sugar Bush was six to eight miles long, two to three miles wide and dotted with carefully developed farm clearings. Roaring through the Sugar Bush, the fire burst over Peshigo, wiped it out in a matter of minutes and raced straight for Marinette and Menominee. These unsuspecting communities were saved by the low sand hills just south of the former.

Passed Marinette

The fire split on the hills and swept around Marinette in two columns, close enough to single both outskirts. The eastern column destroyed most of the village of Mennekaunee before being halted by the Menominee River. Sparks from burning Mennekaunee fell in Menominee but were beaten out.

The western branch jumped the river, by-passed Menominee and struck the village of Birch Creek, where it killed 19 people before roaring up the creek about 14 miles. No lives were lost in Mennekaunee.

The Sugar Bush and Peshigo had no such luck. No accurate count was ever possible, but at least 600 perished in Peshigo and there were 265 known dead in the Sugar Bush.

The Door peninsula conflagration began in the Town of Morrison and roared north as far as Jacksonport, gutting 500 square miles in an area 60 miles long and from 6 to 12 miles wide.

Villages along both shores escaped total destruction although nearly all were damaged, but interior farming communities were wiped out. Almost completely destroyed were Williamsonville, Forestville, Brussels, New Franken, and Rosiere.

Rain Too Late

The greatest loss of life was at Williams onville, about five miles south of Sturgeon Bay, where only 17 of a population of 80 escaped. Forty-four died at Rosiere, 35 at Forestville, 22 at Brussels and scores more on isolated farms all over the peninsula. Estimates of total casualties varied between 130 and 500. Nobody ever really knew.

Twenty-four hours later the rains came. But what wasn't soon enough for hundreds who had been killed and maimed and thousands who had been stripped of everything they possessed, some even losing the clothes off their backs. Over $5,000,000 worth of property went up in flames, not counting the loss of 2 billion pine trees in an eight-county area covering 1,200,000 acres.

Looking Backward

Railway Regulation Favored

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Jan. 17, 1880.

It is not an interference with State or reserved rights for the general government to legislate upon and regulate the rates of freight to be charged by railroad companies whose lines run into and through parts of more than one state.

Indeed, it is possible that the soundest legal minds in the land may arrive at the conclusion that under the powers invested in congress by the Constitution to regulate commerce, federal legislation may be applied to all railways as it is to steamers and vessels navigating a river or lake in a single state.

Granted that the power cannot be disputed as to interstate railways, the question presents itself, when and how shall it be exercised. It would seem that the first step should be to enlighten the public mind thoroughly as to the real cost of every inter-state line of railway; second, to obtain statistical information to show actual operating expenses; and third the charges imposed for the transportation of passengers and freight.

The combination of great railway corporations are a standing threat against all other business interests and it is evident that legislation to regulate and restrain them from acts of speculation and oppression cannot be adopted to soon.

Audience Variety Brings Success to Show, Says Actor

New York — (U-P) Variety is the secret of success with an audience, Charles Boyer finds — but not always.

"Usually an audience needs many elements from many backgrounds in order to react well to a play," says the French star. This, he feels, is why performances bought out by large organizations for fund-raising purposes are often cold in their response. But in his current role in "Marriage-Go-Round," Boyer reports benefit audiences have been highly responsive. "Apparently the only elements needed are men and women to provide sufficiently opposite reactions," he declares of the comedy which concerns a marital mixup.

Film Group Repeals Bylaws Barring Reds From Competition

Hollywood — (U-P) The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences repealed its bylaw barring communists from competing for Oscars yesterday, saying it is unworkable. It attributed this to the fact that it has no control over the engaging of talent for films. It added that the academy's proper function "is only to honor achievements as presented."

Logical Choice

Mooreville, Ind. — (U-P) Mrs. J. L. Reedy was a unanimous selection for the honor of being first to drive over the town's new $150,000 bridge. The old span had collapsed two years before just seconds after Mrs. Reedy drove across.

All People Alike

The speaker's main interest is people and he feels that people are alike, fundamentally — even cannibals. He believes, "We must recognize that the standards by which we judge progress and superiority are not necessarily the standards used by other peoples."

Furbay's theory stresses that so-called "backward" nations can teach us many valuable things about "living," although their scientific developments and mechanical achievements have not kept pace with the United States. He urges we develop a genuine appreciation of other

Family Diary

Each year, sometime in between Christmas present buying and income tax paying, I become involved in a major economy drive. Our family is resigned to this, although some very pointed remarks are directed my way. When the bills for December arrived I was shocked and immediately made plans for my campaign.

I worked out a budget somewhat on the order of the dear little one John and I had the first years of our marriage when we divided his salary into envelopes marked Car, Food, Baby, Recreation, etc. This provided us with hours of careful planning and stimulating argument, although we always ended the week with the food envelope owing the car envelope, recreation owing utilities and the baby owing everything. But to a surprising extent it worked. At least we had some idea where the money had gone.

Hectic Week I didn't go so far this time as dividing the actual cash into envelopes—I'm sure it would have taken three times as many—but on paper I worked out a rather detailed plan in which the successful operation of the food division depended on my carefully checking the newspaper ads to find out which stores had the best bargains.

I had a terrifically hectic week, P.T.A., Cub Scouts, book club meeting, neighborhood bridal shower mingled with the usual washing, ironing, cooking, cleaning, child and husband counseling and care. At any rate Friday, shopping day for me—found me completely tied up, and Saturday was no better. By dinner time I was really discouraged. "I'm exhausted," I said, "and I still have to go to the store."

"Wait until Monday," John advised. "I can't," I said. "The bargains are only for the week-ends."

"Make up a list," John said. "I'll go." Tommy and Sally immediately went for their wraps. If they can help it, the car never leaves without them. Bruce wanted to see if the latest issue of his scientific magazine was out and Libby joined the party on principle.

I at once turned off the television set and two radios and settled down with a new book in a blissfully quiet house. A good hour and a half later, the little safari returned. I watched them troop into the house and could scarcely credit my eyes. Everyone of

Our Children Plentiful Water Supply In Schools Needed, Not Extravagant, Says Patri BY ANGELO PATRI Paraphrasing Lincoln, God must like water. He made so much of it. Yet how scarce it can be on occasions, in places where it is needed, particularly in schools. Once I worked in a school where there was only one sink with one faucet, and that in the basement of the school; one in the boys' yard, one in the girls'.

The superintendent whose duty it was to visit the school each term was a stickler for clean papers. The compositions and drawings, filed regularly for his inspection, must have no trace of finger marks. Woe betide the unfortunate teacher whose filed-work showed that trace.

Boys and girls played at recess, before admissions and at the stated game time in physical training. Their hands grew grimy—and that one sink and faucet did not seem adequate to the need.

There are more sinks and more faucets in the schools of today, for which all teachers give thanks. Some well-furnished schools have sinks and water in classrooms where the work calls for water as in painting and pasting and modeling in clay.

Plumbing is expensive, so some of the people who have never handled a class in cutting and pasting accuse us of extravagance and waste because of this water in the classroom. The alternative is 30 odd children with sticky hands which they remedy by spreading their fingers wide and wiping them hard on their clothing—a most inadequate method of "meeting the need."

The alternative to the water in the room is a pitcher, a quart size, and an agate basin, same capacity. A child travels down flights of steps to the basement for a pitcher of water.

Please, boards of education, architects of schools, tax payers and parents, when building a school be generous with the water supply where it is needed. Think of the little ones going down a long corridor then down a flight of steps to get to the toilet, or to the sink. It is not fair, it is not decent.

Extravagance, my eye I'll do without walls but not water.

Slick Trick Helps Balance the Budget

By Jeannette Griffith

the five bore two large bulging bags. I trailed after them into the kitchen. John began unloading.

"Listen, honey, you must not have read those ads very carefully if you were looking for bargains. Why that store was simply crammed with bargains you didn't have on that list." He produced them one by one. "Look, Preserved Cantonese ginger, regularly 89 cents reduced to 59 cents. One jar of artichoke hearts half price when you buy one at full price. One can of Mexican tamales free with each package of tortillas." Gaily the children began delving into their own bags and producing equally astounding and appalling bargains.

For a grand climax John fished out an enormous jug.

"And here," he said, "a gallon of mustard for not more than you'd pay for a quart."

"A gallon of mustard!" I yelled. Then I picked up the long ribbon of sales ticket and, looking at the total, groaned aloud.

"Something wrong, Mom?" Bruce inquired. I looked at the five of them, red cheeks from the cold, laughing, triumphant over their expedition for bargains. They couldn't have been happier if they'd just attended a gala dinner and theater party.

"Nothing is wrong," I said, laughing with them. "I think you're all wonderful." Humming a little tune, I sauntered to my budget book and transferred the $10 item earmarked for entertainment into the food account.

Your Problems Unsuspecting Widower Gives Choice Matter to Gossip Mill BY ANN LANDERS DEAR ANN: We are two teenage sisters, 18 and 16. We want to know if we are right or wrong.

Two years ago our mother died leaving my sister and myself and two younger children, now 13 and 9. Dad has never gone out with other women that we know of, until he met this one we are writing about.

Three weeks ago he mentioned casually that he'd like to bring a "friend" to the house so we could get acquainted. Last week she came for dinner and stayed with us the entire evening while dad went bowling. This was done so we could get to know her a little. Yesterday he told us she was coming to spend the weekend. She will occupy his room and he will sleep on the sofa.

We two older girls realize that Dad is a grown man and can do as he pleases, but we don't think this woman should spend the night in our house because it wouldn't look right to others, particularly the two younger children.

Please don't get the idea we resent Dad going with her. The only thing we question is, should she be spending the night? Thank you—H and M

Dear H and M: I agree that the woman should not be spending the night in your home. Not only is this in poor taste, but it would surely provide choice grist for the gossip mill. Your father, in his innocence, probably does not realize it, so I suggest you point it out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is an alcoholic. I know it and he knows it. He has stopped drinking completely, but years of excessive drinking have damaged his health and have been rough on us financially.

Our friends all know of his experience with liquor. Yet when we go places where il-liquor is served, these so-called "friends" do everything they can to get him to have a drink.

At parties someone invariably tries to shove a highball in his hand. At the club, or a dance it's always the same old story "Oh have just one. It won't hurt."

A few years ago, after having been on the wagon for a long time, one drink started him down that nightmarish road again. No one will ever know what a horrible year it was for both of us.

Please pass this word along, Ann. Tell your readers that liquor, to some people, is deadly and it is no act of friendship to force it on someone who says "no thank you."—I.N.O.F.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to say a word to that white collar worker who signed himself "Robbed." He complained about office average radiation in the world becomes drastically higher than at present? Ah, for that we must prepare beforehand, not afterward.

And so we are trying to look forward and be ready for whatever the future holds. This is better than waiting until it is too late to start studying matters.

We are trying to be wise, to be safe. The rule for any doctor these days, is, "Use no more radiation than is necessary."

No Affect "Dear Dr. Molner: Does plucking the hairs cause them to grow heavier, by affecting the roots?"—M.F.

No. Because the root itself is not much affected. The hair generally breaks off some-what above the point at which the hair actually starts growing.

Otosclerosis F.J.W.: Otosclerosis is a clogging of the labyrinth of the year by growth of a sort of spongy, boney substance. The cause is in question; the result is impaired hearing. The only remedy is surgery, known as fenestration, or "opening a window" for sound to reach the ear. Only a specialist can judge such a case. (Copyright, 1959) posed you (and the baby) to no more than one-tenth of a second for each plate.

We have absolutely—and I emphasize the word absolutely—no reason to think that any detectable harm can come from so short an exposure.

In fact, in your lifetime you are exposed to hundreds of times that much radiation simply from the so-called natural radiation which exists, and has existed for thousands of years.

Radiation Insignificant The only reason we are now becoming concerned about radiation is the arrival of the atomic age. The concern over the radiation received by any of us (excepting only people who have been in an atomic bombing, or otherwise exposed to some tremendous amount of radiation) is not significant.

Heavy radiation, we are sure, is harmful. Light radiation is too trivial to be alarming.

But suppose someday the talk about radiation—X-rays, fallout, or what you will—should be abolished. Rather, I think there is good reason why we should discuss the matter, since the world so clearly seems destined to have to meet this problem.

Yet I also feel that this frequent discussion has resulted in a great deal of needless harm. Your own case is an excellent example of someone who has been made the victim of undue alarm.

To answer your question, specifically, the X-rays ex-

Uncle Ray Talking Satellite Seen as Great Victory for Scientists BY RAMON COFFMAN The talking satellite which was launched last month was a triumph for the American government. Speaking broadly, it marked a victory for rocket scientists in general. They were cheered by this success, and expect to go forward to still greater things in the early future.

The talking satellite was the largest ever put into orbit around the earth. More important, it was the first to be fitted with instruments which would receive messages and send them back to the earth.

What progress science is making in this twentieth century! Rocket trips to the moon were predicted, in a sense, by Jules Verne during the past century. In this column, more than 20 years ago, we had our first stories about imaginary rocket trips to planets in the solar system.

Those things may come to pass before very long. It seems likely that men will reach the moon, perhaps also the planet Mars.

A warning note was sounded over the radio after the launching of the first talking satellite. Here, in substance, was the message: "Every country should announce in advance the launching of rockets designed to become satellites, or to go to the moon or elsewhere in outer space."

"The Atlas is a missile, and an object of that kind (seen in another country) could be mistaken for an atomic missile and might start an atomic war." That warning seems to be grounded in good sense. If the human race is to escape an atomic war, we must "look beyond our noses." No one wants such a war to be started by accident. Neither do we want one started on purpose. New Designer Creates Petite Woman Fashions

Rome—(U.P.) Patrick De Barentzen a 28-year-old Frenchman who previously worked for other Italian fashion houses, made his debut last night designing under his own name.

Designed with the petite woman in mind, his collarless, knee-length creations were almost half and half—half bodice and half skirt. Their emphasis on width suggested Alice Through the Looking Glass.

Showing at the end of the first day of Rome's spring-summer fashion opening, De Barentzen established a specific theme and expanded it in a wonderland of brash color and fantasy. His sleeveless, loosely fitted bodices were modified vests, freely interpreted. Wide flat skirts were pegged at the hips and slackened at the knees.

Jackets had spacious necklines, almost always embellished with a mass of shiny beads. Ample, fallen shoulders had drafty, elbow-length sleeves. The seams made them look like vast, waist-length bibs. This bib effect with its low-slung sleeve was carried through in coats as well as suits. Consistency was the keynote.

The vest-top, peg-skirt dress with its bare-neck, full-blown jacket appeared in such uninhibited hues as ultra violet and Kelly green. It was worn with flat straw hats and gloves which hugged half the forearm and shantungs and faile.

As the daytime dwindled into darkness, De Barentzen's dresses filled out at the hip and diminished at the knee.

Good Books Fly High, Quiz Shows Plummet in Teenagers' Estimation

BY EUGENE GILBERT
The teenage bookworm is not extinct.
Actually, a good book ranks higher on the teenage preferred entertainment list than television or the movies.
"I'm much more interested in good literature," says 16-year-old Sherry Gilbert, Nashville, Tenn., "than watching Marilyn Monroe wiggle across the screen."
Admittedly this is a young woman's point of view. But Sherry speaks for about 40 per cent of the 604 boys and girls we polled in a recent survey. Television was listed as top preference by 30 per cent and the movies by 29 per cent.
The bookish youngsters say they'll have time later for late movies and new movies, soap operas and horse operas. They learn more from books, they say, and what they read sticks with them.
Adventure Favorite
Among the dissenters is Tom Grathwohl, 13, New Suffolk, N. Y. "I have enough reading in school," Tom says. "I enjoy just sitting back and watching television."
Most of the movie fans agree with 15-year-old Stanley Rouk, St. Louis, Mo., who explains, "You can get out of the house and really enjoy yourself."
About one in every four of the youngsters say they read two books a month—books other than those assigned at school. About the same number, however, say they read for pleasure only when they have time between school assignments.

The favorite reading matter is adventure stories, although biographies rank almost as high. Also popular are historical novels, romance fiction, mysteries and science fiction. New Orleans girl says they undoubtedly as a result of father's program director space technology, science fiction is gaining new popularity.
In a poll taken a year ago, we found that only 9 per cent list this category as their favorite. The barometer has their entertainment quality, since risen to 20 per cent. Ninety-seven per cent said

1-Room School On Way Out

Only 2,811 Survive, State Education Department Reports

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The 1-room rural school is swiftly shrinking in importance in the Wisconsin educational program.
Only about one eighth of the elementary school pupils in the state are now served by 1-room rural schools, according to the state department of public instruction.
In 1957, said the department, there were 2,811 of such schools serving, with a slender total of 57,700 youngsters attending.
Steady Migration
The steady migration of population to the cities over several decades, combined with a strong movement for the reorganization of school patterns and the provision of districts with integrated programs of grades one through 12 have been responsible for the elimination of hundreds of the traditional one-room units.
Some neighborhoods cling to old methods, for reasons varying from practical to sentimental.
The department disclosed that there were 10 schools with enrollments of five children or under, and 218 with enrollments of less than ten.
The most numerous group, 699, reported enrollments from 15 to 20.

Speakers Named For Rally at Forest Junction

Forest Junction—The Rev. M. J. Roehrdanz of Two Rivers and Charles Driver of Fredonia have been engaged as speakers for a sub-district youth rally to be held at Zion Evangelical United Brethren church Jan. 25.
Constituting a "cluster" of the denominational Eastern conference are the fields of Brillion, Forest Junction, Denmark, Door county, Lark, Reedsville, town of Rantoul and Two Rivers. The Rev. Clarence M. Knoespel of Lark serves as leader.
Afternoon events open with registration from 2:30 to 3 p.m. A film, "North American Neighbors," will be shown by the Rev. Mr. Roehrdanz. A business session and recreational features will precede a cafeteria supper to be served at the church.
The evening service will be addressed by Driver of Fredonia, who has served as a New Tribes missionary worker in New Guinea. Pictures will be shown.

Assemblyman Priebe Takes Papers to Run Again for Alderman

Assemblyman Kenneth E. Priebe has ended speculation on whether he will seek reelection as Eleventh ward alderman by taking nomination papers for the post.
Priebe, 46, 1206 S. Ritger street, an insurance salesman, has been an alderman continuously since 1943. He is the first to declare for the Eleventh ward post.
The jobs of assemblyman and alderman are not incompatible. This session of the state legislature has several legislators who also are town chairmen and county board supervisors.
During his tenure in the legislature, former Gov. Vernon W. Thomson also served as mayor of Richland Center and until recently Jerome Quinn, Green Bay, was at the same time alderman, county board supervisor and assemblyman.

Cork Oak Scraggly at First, But Becomes Beautiful Plant

By Katherine B. Walker
Even I, a real plant-lover, must admit that a juvenile specimen of Cork Oak is not the handsomest plant in the world. But it improves magically with age, and since it is remarkably long-lived, you can expect many years of pleasure from it.
Cork Oaks (Quercus suber), unlike the deciduous oaks most of us are familiar with, are evergreen. The beloved Live Oak of the south (Q. virginia) is another of the evergreen ones, and like the Cork Oak, adapts itself well to pot or tub culture indoors. Both of these make truly magnificent specimens, once you get them past the lanky, adolescent period which lasts for a year or two.
It is advisable to get them young so that they will adjust more easily to your indoor conditions, and can be pruned or trained to whatever shape you desire right from the start. With its naturally graceful branches, and small, wavy-edged leaves, I believe Cork Oak would be an excellent subject for Bonsai, or Ming tree, use.
Japanese Art
Speaking of Bonsai, which is the Japanese art of dwarfing trees and other plants, the Brooklyn Botanic garden has one of the finest books on the subject that I have ever seen. It is written simply enough to understand, it is lavishly illustrated with step-by-step pictures, and every time I read it, I can't help starting more pots of dwarfed plants, using ones I've never tried before.
Provide a moderately moist, rich soil for Cork Oak. Other than that, it will take almost anything you have to offer in the way of sun or shade, warmth or coolness, and best of all, it seems quite resistant to the more common indoor pests.
Questions and Answers
What kind of soil produces pink flowers on hydrangeas? A neutral or very slightly acid soil is recommended when pink flowers are desired. If your soil is too acid, add a small amount of lime to it.
I just moved into a new house, and now all the plants that did so well in our old place are dying. Leaves on my ivy dropped off, as did those on the philodendron. Is there any way I can grow plants in this new place, or must I give up trying?
There are undoubtedly many things about your new home that differ from the old, and whereas you can take them in stride, it seems your plants are having difficulty adjusting to the new conditions. From your letter, I would judge that your new home has much less light than the former one, and that the air is considerably drier; therefore, you will have to increase the light or set your plants closer to the windows, and you should perhaps use a pebble tray or similar device to furnish additional moisture in the air around the plants. You alone can tell just where the variations are between what the plants were accustomed to in your other home, and what they now have, and adjust the conditions as necessary.
How big will a Jade plant get?
In time, given the proper care, Jade plant (Crassula arborescens) will become the size of a small tree.
What is the name of a plant that has rather fleshy, long, tapered leaves growing in sort of a rosette, dark green with purple undersides?
From your description, this

Lawrence Says:
Soviet Humbug
Exposed by Mikoyan's Tour

When Will Russia
Give U. S. Citizens
Same Rights, He Asks

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
 Washington — If anything were needed to expose the humbug and hypocrisy of the Moscow government, it has been fully demonstrated in the paradox of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's tour of this country. While he openly criticizes the government of the United States and its policies, no American, whether an official or an unofficial visitor, may do likewise inside the so-called republics of the Soviet Union.

Lawrence
 Mikoyan's tour of this country. While he openly criticizes the government of the United States and its policies, no American, whether an official or an unofficial visitor, may do likewise inside the so-called republics of the Soviet Union.

Already "Tass," the official news agency of the Soviet government, is telling its readers and listeners that the people of the United States do not agree with the American government's policies and that Mikoyan is certainly winning converts to his cause.

Imagine some American official going to Russia and touring that country, making outspoken criticisms of the men in the Kremlin and trying to drive a wedge between the people and their government! This can be only a wild fancy. For nothing like it would be tolerated by the dictatorship which rules the Soviet Union.

H. S. Visitors
 The Soviet Union has had some distinguished American visitors, including Sen. Hubert Humphrey, one of the leaders of the opposition party in congress and a high-ranking member of the senate foreign relations committee. But, though he spent eight hours in conference with Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin, what the senator said or later wrote in defense of American policies or in criticism of Soviet policies was suppressed, by order of the government, in all the newspapers of the Soviet Union.

How can there be mutual trust or the beginnings of a peaceful co-existence when the rules that apply inside the Soviet Union are so hostile to the concept of free interchange between peoples?

The Columbia Broadcasting System has been ordered to close its Moscow bureau, and accreditation has been withdrawn for its correspondent. This was done to express Soviet disapproval of the televising over the CBS network in this country of a show about Stalin of the type found in historical novels.

Similarly, a National Broadcasting Company representative in Moscow was denied use of broadcast facilities because of some phrasing in one of his broadcasts which the Soviet government didn't like. The Soviets, moreover, spend millions of dollars each year jamming American radio broadcasts to Russia and countries in Eastern Europe.

Even more hypocritical is the Soviet government's attitude toward foreign newspapers and periodicals. It examines the policies of the publications and denies the admission of permanent correspondents representing any publication whose content the Soviets dislike. Yet the congress of the United States admits to its press galleries persons from the Soviet union in the guise of newsmen who are agents or employees of their own government in every sense of the word.

There is, in fact, no such thing today as reciprocity as between the Soviet government and our own government. It is the United States that gives constantly, while the Moscow government, repeatedly says "no."

The reception given Mikoyan is being described in the Moscow press and radio as an indication that the American people do not agree with their own government. Such distortions are to be expected in a government-controlled press. When, however, it may be asked of Mikoyan, will the Soviet union permit any American to stump Russia and tell them their dictatorship is bad and can be overthrown by force whenever the people, by concerted action, decide to do so? If Mikoyan says it can't be done here either, he may be referred, incongruous though it be, to the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the so-called Yates case. This says it is constitutional for anybody—even a member of the communist party of the Soviet union—to come to America and preach the gospel of revolution. When will the supreme tribunal of the Soviets grant Americans a reciprocal right?

Colleges Want More Money

Schools Hope to Boost Ratio of Teachers to Students

Madison—State college administrators are appealing to Gov. Nelson for funds to permit a more efficient teacher-student ratio in their institutions.

E. R. McPhee, director of the state college system, told the governor's financial advisors this week that the 10 state colleges are lagging "dangerously" behind the standards of the North Central Association of Colleges, an accrediting organization, in proportion of teachers to students.

He said the present ratio is about one teacher to slightly more than 20 students. The colleges want a ratio of about one to 18. The difference involves about 75 teaching positions.

In another development at the colleges' budget conference, McPhee made public an arrangement between the colleges and the University of Wisconsin for a new graduate studies program designed to develop "master teachers" for the public schools.

He said two or three state colleges, and the university, would probably launch the program on an experimental basis during summer terms this year. Purpose is to emphasize graduate work in subject matter, rather than technique, for professional teachers.

Municipal Credit Union Authorizes Insurance Plan

The Appleton city employees credit union has authorized a term life insurance plan up to $1,000 face value for members.

Amount of insurance is determined by the amount of money the employee has in the credit union. It will cost 65 cents a month for each $1,000 in insurance, credit union President Walter Bogan said.

The union also has elected all officers. Bogan, building inspector, is president; City Clerk Elden J. Broehm is vice president; Plumbing Inspector Reginald Gloudemans, secretary; and Relief Director F. A. W. Hammond, treasurer.

Relected directors were Gloudemans, Hammond and Policeman Kenneth Van Heuklon.

The credit union had assets of $15,872.04, compared to $11,688 a year earlier. It has 39 loans totaling $7,856.31 outstanding.

They announced today that Frigidaire designers waved a wand and presto: the lady of the house pulls the entire oven out of the range cabinet where she can clean it easily — without stretching or stooping. The top lifts off so that even the back wall of the oven is completely accessible. This development, which makes oven cleaning possible in half the usual time, is featured in Frigidaire's new 40-inch electric ranges for 1959. Keep Bathroom Modern When Redecorating Home

Are you tired of your old house? Are you ashamed to have your friends drop in? Do you wish you had a nice new sparkling home that is fresh and easy to care for? Don McKinley of McKinley Engineering, 741 W. College avenue, and his staff would like to help you. McKinley says that by reten this room is left far behind in decorating because most people do not realize that it is an easy process now with the help of McKinley's planning service.

Have you thought of using colored fixtures in your bathroom? McKinley recommends looking at some of the new shades available now before deciding on your color scheme. He has fixtures in grey, coral, pink, blue, green, Persian and sandstone, as well as white.

Wayne D. Jensen recently joined McKinley's staff as master plumber in charge of the firm's plumbing department, which furnishes Fox Cities' homes with plumbing service and repairs as well as new plumbing installations.

Don McKinley also recommends that if you want that "new house" feeling to work on your kitchen, another room which will show up the antiquity of your home.

Choose from stainless steel, white or colored sinks, disposals, under-counter dishwashers and built-in ovens for a really modern looking kitchen. McKinley Engineering offers thorough and effective planning from an efficient staff.

Spacious and Lovely is Prinsen Hall at the Heid Music company where regular piano and organ concerts are held. Up to 200 persons attend the monthly concerts of teachers and pupils as well as guest artists and national recording artists. More recently the MacDowell and Chaminade choruses were on the program. Clubs and organizations may use the hall for their programs, with or without musical entertainment. Heid Music Co. is located at 308 E. College avenue.

Prinsen Hall is a lovely place to meet, Heid's says. Adjacent to the auditorium are 12 rooms for instruction. Pupils are taught the use of all types of instruments. Fifteen instructors compose the prominent, highly qualified staff, the firm states, and there are approximately 200 pupils.

Rental Plan

A few years ago, Heid's initiated a rental plan to help their pupils, who can now rent an instrument at home while they are studying at the Heid studios. The rental can be applied toward the purchase price.

A complete line of musical instruments are available at Heid's. Pianos and organs are all on display in the second floor show room. Famous names will be recognized: Conn, Gulbransen, Knabe, Belsy, Ross, Fischer, Hardorff, Krakauer. Come and see the instruments — or better still, let Heid's teach you to play one.

Florida Sunshine comes to you right here in Appleton through the doors of the Alko Super Market, 1421 N. Richmond street. We all know the value of citrus fruit for fighting off colds during this time of the year and there is always an appetizing display of citrus and other fruits at Alko's. This is an excellent time to be buying fresh juice oranges, according to Alko's, and when you squeeze them yourself, you will know it's fresh, pure orange juice. The fine appearance of the fresh produce at Alko's will bring you back time and again. Alko's is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. six days a week and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays and there is always plenty of good parking.

Mares' Agency Offers 'Planalysis': Summary of Your Insurance Needs

Planalysis is a businesslike audit showing at a glance what protection the readers have, how much it costs, and whether the readers are under or over-insured, according to Pat Mares of the Mares' Insurance Agency. Planalysis tells readers what risks they are protected against, if there is duplication on any coverage and if they are getting the most of their insurance dollar.

Mares' Insurance Agency will examine policies now in force and present readers a completed Planalysis that they may examine and study point by point. Mares' Insurance Agency was started in 1953 by Pat Mares. The firm writes all types of insurance anywhere: life, auto, fire, casualty, workmen's compensation, hospital, accident and health. For example, to show readers how broad their coverage and how many types insurance are available, the company has an insurance policy on Wisconsin's only elephant.

Mares' Insurance Agency writes insurance for the following companies: Northwestern Mutual Life, Shelby

Mutual, Employers Mutual Casualty, Integrity Mutuals, Maryland Casualty, Glen Falls Insurance, German-town Mutual, Central Mutual, Kewaskum Mutual, American, Citizens, Dairyman's, Illinois Mutual, Manitowish, Campbellsport, Western Surety, Hartland Cicero, Cicero and Foremost.

Mares' Insurance Agency is located at 630 W. Wisconsin avenue in the Hahn building. Phone number of the firm is RE 9-1111. The office is open six days a week. Two girls handle customers' calls and problems speedily. Main features of the firm are 24-hour service and nationwide companies that are listed in the phone book—wherever you may travel—for fast claim service. Readers are dealing with one agent, however, Mares said, which will save the insured many dollars and headaches.

Missile Test Proves Success

Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.—
The first launch of the B-57 bomber guided missile field was a success, the air force says.
In the first launching from the new multimillion dollar test center, a B-57 scored a direct hit on a jet drone flying 87 miles out over the Gulf of Mexico Thursday.
Seconds after takeoff, the 47-foot interceptor missile settled into level flight at about 1,750 m.p.h. It zeroed in on the drone, a QF-80 converted jet Shooting Star, and knocked it down.
The launching from nearby Santa Rosa Island was controlled by a special weapons system at Eglin main base, about 10 miles from the launching shelters.
The B-57 can carry an atomic or conventional warhead and is designed to intercept and destroy enemy bombers and missiles miles from their targets.

T. Klug, Wausau. The Rev. Mr. Klug is missions counselor of the North Wisconsin district of the synod.

The district owns a 4-acre tract of land just east of the present terminal of Candee street.

According to the Rev. Mr. Klug, the Sunday evening meeting has been called to form an association of people interested in the new church. He is chairman of the missions committee of the district's board of directors.

Fire Late Friday Afternoon left the bedroom of the Orville Scharmann home, 1206 W. Brewster street, like this. Before being checked by firemen, the flames and resulting heat and smoke caused damage estimated in excess of $5,000 inside the 1-story, brick frame house.

Fire Damage To Home More Than $5,000

Flames Coming Out Two Windows When Firemen Arrive

Fire caused more than $5,000 damage late Friday afternoon at the Orville Scharmann home, 1206 W. Brewster street.

Flames were coming from two windows when firemen arrived.

Scharmann told Fire Chief Paul Neumann the first alarm was given by his 2-year-old son who ran from a bedroom saying, "Hot... Hot."

Scharmann said he saw flames rolling out of the bedroom into the living room.

The fire, Neumann said, apparently started in the bedroom clothes closet. The chief suspects the 2-year-old had something to do with it, but has had difficulty communicating with the youngster.

The bedroom, living room and the immediate area near them were charred and there was extensive heat and smoke damage throughout the relatively new 1-story, brick veneer home, Neumann said.

City Rejects Latest Offer Of Industrial Park Land

George V. VandenHeuvel's latest offer to sell the city all or part of nearly two acres adjacent to the city's industrial park was rejected Friday by the council's industrial development committee.

VandenHeuvel said he would sell all except a 125 by 62.7-foot piece on which his house sits for $4,000. Figures given indicated the price would come to about $2,333 an acre. Earlier, he had $12,600 and $11,800 price tags on the entire acreage.

Committeemen told VandenHeuvel they did not think the city should pay more than $1,500 an acre, the amount they paid for the bulk of the 40-acre industrial park.

Questions Need One committeeman questioned whether there is need to buy more land for the park. It was explained the VandenHeuvel land lies in a narrow strip abutting the park along the north edge of the park. It could prevent additions to the park in the future.

Mayor Mitchell asked the committee to begin thinking about what planning it will undertake in the park. He said a meeting will be called sometime in February to gather ideas.

The park, due for annexation in early February, has Sunday until 10 a. m. Tuesday and then at the church.

for political campaign purposes. Molinaro says that prohibition is unfair because corporations which are equally prohibited from contributing their funds for political purposes permit their officers to finance political campaigns as individuals. Unions cannot pay their officers the high salaries required for such contributions, he complains.

Molinaro maintains that many of the persons employed in Kenosha, near the Illinois line, are living across the state border and are not paying Wisconsin income taxes. There is also a tax leakage resulting from the employment of transients in many Wisconsin industrial centers, he said. A withholding tax law would capture the tax returns of such dodgers.

Other Problems The house speaker also sees as major legislative problems "the growing pains of our cities" and the fact that "we still don't have an adequate financial structure to carry on a good educational program."

The speaker is vague when he is asked about his future political career but he announces that he has no interest in going to the United States Congress.

"This is the place where you can do something for people," he remarks, referring to Madison.

He is confident that the working of the lower house of the legislature will be reasonably harmonious in spite of the presence there of a strong and tightly knit Republican minority of 45 men.

He learned during his long years of service as a member of the Democratic party when it was in the minority, he said, that legislators are friendly and reasonable men and he is sure that the Republicans with whom he worked will be cooperative with the Democrats in spite of the election of a Democratic majority last fall.

Donors will be contacted if their names appear on the list to give O types, Rh negative blood. Eighteen pints will be necessary for the operation and will be flown to Madison by James R. Whitman, Jr., if weather permits. If not, the blood will be taken to the Madison hospital by automobile.

Pay $2,000 To UW Center

The council's finance committee has voted to send the promised $2,000 grant-in-aid to the Menasha University of Wisconsin extension.

The money was promised last year by the council from 1959 appropriations. It will be used to defray cost of classes held in two different places in Menasha.

Other committee action: The library board and park boards were sent their shares of the money voted so far in 1959 salary adjustments. The library board will get $900, the park board, $1,320. City budgets get $18,120.

This is equivalent to $60 a year for salaried workers and three cents an hour for hourly-paid workers, the amount of wage increase authorized until the state bureau of personnel completes a study of pay and job classification plans, probably in August.

Milk Inspection

The council intends to spend what remains of a $50,000 salary increase appropriation on putting the new plans into effect.

A total of $466.62 was ordered transferred from the contingent fund of $58,579.43 to repay Kimberly for milk inspection charges. The village has cancelled its contract with the city and had paid its $800 annual charge in September. The rebate is for seven months. The village told Mayor Mitchell it has contracted for service by Dairilab, Manitowish.

A tax protest filed by Maynard Streeter, 403 E. Wilson avenue, was denied. He protested payment of $280.80 for street improvements. He had not paid the special assessment and a fifth of the charge had been entered on the tax roll at 4 per cent annual interest.

The committee approved purchase of $492,433.19 in treasury bills that will pay $500,000 on July 16. Surplus monies were used by the treasurer's office.

Parking Fund Hospital and doctor bills incurred by Mrs. Hilda Foster, city employee whose workmen's compensation case went to the industrial commission, were ordered paid. They total $1,483.35.

The $16,000 borrowed from the parking meter fund last year to buy the Marston property as a site for vocational school addition was ordered repaid to the fund.

The request of the Outagamie county guidance center people for an appropriation was denied. The Outagamie county board this week deferred action until November on a request for funds for the center.

Neenah Group Studies Proposed Framework for Disaster Handling

Neenah — A proposed framework for operation of a civil defense and disaster program was presented to a group of city officials and utility and communications personnel Friday afternoon.

The framework was proposed by Police Chief Irving Stilp, Fire Chief John Zick and Bill Dunwiddie, Red Cross disaster chairman, who were assigned that task at the initial meeting two weeks ago.

A third meeting was set for Jan. 30 at which Dunwiddie will report on the number of public buildings, schools and churches which could be used for handling persons in the event of a disaster such as a tornado or major fire. His report will include the facilities each offers and an idea as to how many could be accommodated.

Mayor Chester S. Bell reported the proposed civil defense ordinance was in the hands of each alderman and had been studied by the public protection committee. It is expected to be brought before the council Wednesday night for action.

Proposed Ordinance The ordinance empowers the mayor with council approval to name a civil defense director and a commission. He added that since the first meeting he has received an offer from the Girl Scouts who will help in any way desired and from John B. Catlin who said the amateur radio operators were conducting a campaign for funds to equip mobile unit for receiving and transmitting messages and for walkie-talkies which would be available for disaster or emergency needs.

In outlining the framework for a proposed disaster committee, Police Chief Stilp said the organization would be headed by the mayor as director.

A rocket-quick Appleton high school basketball team blasted Sheboygan North from the ranks of the Fox River Valley conference unbeaten here Friday night and turned the title race into a veritable free-for-all.

So "high" for the game that they could well have been launched from Cape Canaveral, the Terrors outgassed and outsped the foe to repulse the Raider invasion, 54-48.

First-Place Tie

Engineering their fourth straight upset, the new "go, go" Terrors tumbled the state's eighth-ranked quintet into a first-place tie with Manitowoc (65-58 winner over Sheboygan Central Friday). AHS has moved within one game of the lead, sharing third place with Friday night victors Fond du Lac and Green Bay West.

Tonight, the Terrors go into their game at Green Bay East as favorites for the first time since the beginning of their eye-opening comeback (Dec. 27) that has transformed a 1-4 record into 5-4. AHS will encounter a dangerous victory-starved East team, which lost its fifth straight league start, 66-46, at Fond du Lac.

Speed—reminiscent of that flashed by the 1955-56 Terrors—spelled the difference last night. Speed provided the mobility that made the Terrors' zone defense work like a charm, it enabled them to wear down their potent foes with racehorse offensive bursts and it helped them draw a flock of fouls from the outmaneuvered Northmen.

The Terrors turned their frequent foul-line opportunities into game-winning points. Outshot, 19 to 14, from the field, AHS found the mark on 26 of 41 free throws (63.4 per cent). North shot only 476 from the gift stripe (10 for 21).

Never Caught Again

The Terrors led for the final 11 minutes, 40 seconds of a wild and exciting though raggedly-played contest. A pair of Harold Lodholz free throws severed a 30-30 tie, and the underdogs were never caught again.

The Dick Emanuel-coached cagers upholstered their lead to 12 points (44-32) with 6½ minutes left to play. The desperate Raiders struck back to within four points (50-46 and 52-48) in the final 14 minutes but the uphill climb proved too steep.

After AHS' Bob Ferrel put away two free throws for the game's final points, the more exuberant segment of a 1,700 crowd carried the Terror team off the floor.

Appleton's John Nussbaum wrapped up game scoring honors for the fourth straight time. The fast-reacting and springy-legged junior pacer sank six baskets and seven of 12 free throws.

Junior Paul Vander Heyden contributed 11 points—including three timely hook shots—and was a rebounding demon until he hurt his ankle late in the game. There is no definite word on whether the

Demaret Shoots Brilliant 64, Ties for Second

Pebble Beach, Calif. — Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf fundfest swung off on phase three today with lean Art Wall, Jr., four strokes in front of the pack, thanks to a booming driver and a putter that wouldn't miss.

The 35-year-old stringbean from Pocono Manor, Pa., ripped up the Monterey Peninsula course, one of three in use for this 72-hole event, with a 7-under-par 65 and a 2-day total of 134.

An hour later, flamboyant Jimmy Demaret, who hasn't played a tournament since last July, came along on the same course and took some of the glitter off Wall's round with a brilliant 35-29-64.

Tied With Ferrel

The blazing round left dapper Jimmy tied with young Jim Ferrel with 138. Ferrel had a 68 at the tough Cypress Point layout and drew Monterey for his third round. Wall went to Pebble Beach today. That's where the final 18 will be played Sunday.

Bunched at 140 were Jay Herbert, who won the pro-amateur prize last year, Gene Littler and Dow Finsterwald.

Nine were tied at 141—Bud Ward, Joe Kirkwood Jr., Bo Wining, Julius Boros, Billy Maxwell, John McMullin and Bob Rosburg. Maxwell and Boros led the first day with 67s at Monterey.

Wall led the pro-am division with partner Charlie Coe, U.S. amateur king.

Their best ball 60 gave them 125, a stroke ahead of Ellis and Frank Tatum, and Demaret and Pete Elliott, California football coach.

Gary Herold Says He Will Transfer To Stevens Point

West De Pere — Gary Herold, who holds the single season and single game basketball scoring records at St. Norbert college, is planning to transfer to Stevens Point State college for the second semester.

The 5-8 Herold, third highest scorer in Green Knight history, has a year and a half of eligibility left. His point total for 2½ seasons at St. Norbert is 1,104 points. He has 204 points to show for 12 games this season. His total a year ago was 530 points, a school record. His single game mark was 36.

Cornell Whips Visiting Vike Quint, 86-64

Hits 46 Per Cent Of Floor Shots; 3 Players Score 22

Cedar Rapids, Ia. — Cornell college's basketball Rams were never pressed Friday night in dealing Lawrence an 86-64 thrashing at Mt. Vernon, Ia.

The loss, Lawrence's thirty-sixth straight on the road over 34 seasons, was by far the Vikings' worst setback of the season. Lawrence had dropped its first 10 games — eight by six points or fewer — and then broken a 13-game losing streak by beating Ripon Wednesday night.

Shoots 46 Per Cent

Cornell shot a blazing 46 per cent to Lawrence's 37 per cent from the floor. The Rams took 41 shots in the first half and made 20 of them for 49 per cent and a big, 45-26 halftime lead. They had moved away to an 8-2 early lead and weren't in danger after that.

Ten players scored for Cornell, led by Ron Altenberg with 22 points. The 6-0 Altenberg made 10 of 17 shots from the floor. Rich Merz, another 6-footer, potted six of 10 field goal attempts and wired three free throws for 15 points.

For the second straight game, Lawrence's "Chuck" Knocke and Jim Rasmussen each totaled 22 points but this time they had little offensive assistance. Rasmussen, as usual, was a deadly marksman with 6-for-13 from the floor and 10 free throws in 11 tries.

Knocke, too, was hot with eight buckets in 17 shots and 6-for-9 free throwing.

Rasmussen and Bill Weber each had 10 rebounds for the victors who were outfought on the boards. Lawrence moved the ball raggedly and appeared tired.

The losers made 75 per cent of their free throws (18 for 24) while the Rams hit 71 per cent (10 for 14).

Taller Rockets Feature Scoring Balance

BY DICK McDANIEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

New London — The Neenah High school Rockets had too much of everything here Friday night as they rolled up a 88 to 40 decision over the New London Bulldogs in a Mid-Eastern conference game.

A big Neenah height advantage stymied the littler Bulldogs and the New Londoners had trouble getting their shots off over the long arms of the visitors.

The Bulldogs hit only 16 per cent of their shots as many of the balls were deflected after leaving their hands.

Used Many Combinations

Coach Ole Jorgensen, although well aware that he probably could have piled up a new conference scoring record at the expense of the Bulldogs, used many combinations to give all of his players a chance to see action. Because of the many combinations, none of the visitors piled up impressive scoring tallies although Dave Heller and Paul Felton each had 13 and Jerry Moder and Bob Tollefson each had 12.

Center Tom Laux paced New London with 13 points. Freshman Don Harold and Paul Werner, a junior, tied with 11 points each.

Neenah took a 17 to 9 lead at the end of the first quarter, and led 41 to 16 at the half. The Rockets added another 22 points in the third quarter and held New London to nine.

In the closing period, Neenah scored 2 points while holding the Bulldogs to 15.

Ghosts Edge Menasha In Final 19 Seconds Of M-E Basketball Duel

Kaukauna's Only 4th-Period Goal Decisive in Low-Scoring Game

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — Kaukauna made only one field goal in the fourth quarter and just 19 seconds remained when it was scored, but it put the Ghosts ahead for keeps in a 41-38 Mid-Eastern conference win over Menasha here Friday night.

The vital Weyenberg goal, an 18-footer, was tossed in by Bill Borchardt and it accounted for his only points of the night. Gary Vanevenhoven cleared all doubt as to the result by adding two free throws with five seconds left.

The game was unorthodox to say the least. Both clubs had off periods. They shot badly from the floor and the free throw line and each committed 22 fouls.

Miss 17 Shots

Menasha went the whole first quarter and two minutes into the second before it made its first basket. The Jays missed the first 17 shots they tried.

At one juncture in the third period, the hosts were ahead by seven but they lost the lead and saw the Ghosts move in front by three going into the last frame. Both clubs had 6-point fourth quarters.

Two Kaukauna starters weren't around when the victory was achieved. Myron Zachowski fouled out 35 seconds before the third quarter was over, and high-scoring Leroy Weyenberg left with the fourth just 24 seconds old.

10-2 at Quarter

The Jays were held scoreless for the first 7:22 of the game. With 38 seconds left, in the initial quarter, Bob Hodi-kiewicz got his team into the scoring column with two free throws. The Ghosts had led 8-0 at the time and they went on to a 10-2 advantage at the end of the frame.

Menasha located the range in the second segment and got back into the ball game with a string of seven straight points. It didn't catch the visitors until 31 seconds remained, in the half when Jim Stenson's goal put the hometowners

Welu Leads Pin Tourney

Lou Campi 2nd; Don Carter Rises to Fifth

Buffalo, N.Y. — Billy Welu, leader of the All-Star Bowling tournament midway Shawano suffered their sec- in the 4-day finals, is big, and loss of the campaign but jovial and at 26 has earned himself a nice pile of money.

Billy's talent for winning by narrow margins has been an important factor in his success.

He had knocked down 227 pins less than second-place Lou Campi, in the first two days of finals but won six more games.

The Petersen point system, governing tourney finals, awards one point for every 50 pins and one point for every game. Welu has 160-12 points and Campi, 158-39.

Joe Joseph of Lansing, Mich., who bowls with the Pfeiffer team in Detroit, was third at the eighth-round recess with 18-14.

Don Carter, the defending All-Star champion from St. Louis, in tenth place Thursday, won 11 games Friday to take fifth place.

The defending women's champion was in eleventh place at the eighth round. Merle Matthews, Long Beach, Calif., who took the title from Marion Ladewig last year, had 65-32 points at the eighth round.

Mrs. Ladewig, Grand Rapids, Mich., was leading with a 3,367 pin total and a 77-17 point total.

Armstead Wins Split Decision Over Matthews

Hollywood — Light-weight Paulie Armstead of Los Angeles won a split decision over Len Matthews of Philadelphia Friday night.

In a nationally televised scrap, Armstead won the vote of Referee Jimmy Wilson, 97-95, and Judge Lee Grossman, 96-95. Judge George Latka made it 96-94 for Matthews, and most of the experts sided with him.

Every ringside boxing writer except one had Matthews the winner. The lone dissenter called it a draw.

Matthews, unbeaten in 16 previous fights, was an 8-5 betting favorite. He landed by far the harder punches in a 10-round fight filled with action.

He took the setback almost good naturedly and could offer no explanation for it.

Armstead, 21, California champion, was naturally delighted with the decision and apparently a little surprised, too. It was his twenty-third victory in 28 fights.

Two field goals by Joe Steffen in the last two minutes of play allowed Hortonville to come from behind and grab a 43-42 victory from Shiocton in a Little Nine Conference basketball game played at Hortonville Friday night.

The win enabled Hortonville to hold on to first place alone.

In other game, co-runnerup Denmark squeaked past last-place Wrightstown, 36-34, while co-runnerup Omro beat Winneconne, 65-48. Hilbert pulled into a fourth place tie by downing Freedom, 28-21. Reedsville pushed past Bear Creek 62-50.

Shiocton opened up a 26-15 lead over Hortonville at half-time, and the Chief's remained in the lead until with 1:22 left, Steffen put the Polar Bears out in front for the first time, 41-40, on a jump shot from the corners.

With only 26 seconds remaining, Steffen stole the ball and scored to give the hosts a 3-point lead at 43-40. Shiocton's Bob Brownson pushed through a field goal with three seconds remaining to make the final score, 43-42, Hortonville in front.

This was the Hortonville's second win over Shiocton this season. Don Otto returned to the lineup Friday after being out with an injury. The Polar Bears pressed in the second half.

Denmark led all the way and held off against a last period Wrightstown attack to grab a 36-34 win. Danny Lamers, Wrightstown forward, came close to sinking a long shot with 3 seconds remaining that would have tied the game. Both teams played a good defensive tilt which held the score down.

Scheffing Sees Cubs As First Division Contender This Year

Chicago Manager Expects Improvement From Young Hurlers, Picks Braves for Flag

Chicago Manager Bob Scheffing of the Chicago Cubs envisions the Milwaukee Braves as the team to beat again in the National League this year, but predicts his Cubs will be a first division contender.

Scheffing, along with club owner P. K. Wrigley and other Cub officials were hosts to a news conference Thursday at the Wrigley building.

"Even without 'Ited' Schoendienst (ailing second baseman), the Braves have the talent right down the line to win the pennant," Scheffing said. "I always have been impressed by Mel Ronch and Felix Mantilla also is available as a replacement for Schoendienst."

"I don't know how much improvement other National League clubs have made, but I think we have the potential for a first division finish."

Hard-Hitting

The Cubs, a surprisingly hard-hitting club last season, finished in a fifth place tie with the St. Louis Cardinals, 20 games behind the Braves.

"I don't think our club can expect better performances this year over last from the likes of Ernie Banks, Al Dark, Bobby Thomson, Walt Moryn, and Dale Long," said Scheffing.

"But I do expect improvement in our pitching staff which has to be the biggest group of promising young pitchers any major league club has had for quite a few seasons."

Scheffing said at the moment he could not name a "Big Four" mound staff from among such pitchers as Moe Drabowsky, Dick Drott, Taylor Phillips, John Buzhardt, Glen Hobbie, Bob Anderson and Dave Hillman.

Can't Say

"You can't say, concerning this type of early 20's lads, what each will do from year to year," said Scheffing. "But they have had big league experience and show promise."

"Drabowsky made only one start after midseason last year because of injury, but he reports his arm in good shape in workouts at Trinity college where he now is studying."

"I think Drott (7-11) learned a lesson in the hard facts of big league life last season after slumping from his 15-victory season the previous year."

"The thing that is important to me is that Buzhardt and Anderson almost single-handedly moved us from seventh, and a possible last-place finish, to a tie for fifth in the last 10 games of the season in 1958."

No Changes

The Cubs have made no changes since 1958, although they sought either a first line infielder or outfielder. Scheffing is concerned over his aging veterans — Dark at third base and Thomson in center field.

Banks, recently named the National League's Most Valuable player for 1958, also attended the Cub shindig.

Scheffing nodded at Banks and said, "Some people say Ernie is not so hot defensively, but in my book there is only one better fielding shortstop in our league, Cincinnati's Elgin Baylor."

Reliance Meets Clintonville in BABA Action

Neenah — Unbeaten Green Bay, which has all but nailed down the Badger Amateur Basketball association championship, entertains Clintonville (2-6) tonight as it goes after its tenth straight win.

The Reliance entry upped its lead to two games with the 110-97 win over St. John last week in which the Menashans played the last four minutes with three players.

St. John (8-2) is idle. It was scheduled to meet Kimberly but the latter withdrew at the halfway mark.

Defending champion Hewitt's (5-3) plays host to Winneconne at the St. Margaret Mary gym this evening while the Menasha Merchants (2-7) are scheduled to entertain Hortonville (5-3).

Archie Moore Steals Show At Columbus

42 of Nation's Top Athletes Are Honored

Columbus, Ohio — Ohio's capital was also the nation's sports capital Friday night as 42 of the country's top-flight athletes were honored by the Touchdown club.

Archie Moore, the light heavyweight champion, just about stole the oratorical show, and was the only bearded athlete among the recipients.

'Advises Lipscomb'

He told of his $140,000 offer to England's heavyweight champion, Henry Cooper, for a 10-round non-title fight in London in June, and said the offer had been accepted.

Then he turned to Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb, Baltimore Colt lineman, and Jim Brown, Cleveland Brown fullback, with:

"Now is the time for you fellows to make your move. Ask your teams for what you want, and if they don't give it to you, I can turn you into pro fighters and get you plenty."

Lipscomb was honored as the pro lineman of the year, and Brown as the pro player of the year. Neither indicated he was ready to give up football for a ring career.

Paul Dietzel of Louisiana State's collegiate champions, honored as the coach of the year, said 32 of his 35 lettermen would be back next year, and "that's why I'm staying, too."

Randy Duncan, Iowa's quarterback who has played two losing games against Ohio State, was lauded as the Big Ten back of the year and responded with:

"This is the first Friday night I've ever enjoyed in Columbus."

Mickey Eyes $85,000

Dallas, Tex. — Mickey Mantle, the home run slugger of the New York Yankees, says he may not be the best fielder in the world but thinks he deserves a bigger pay check.

Mantle's appraisal of his fielding came in a good natured comment on a remark attributed to Hank Bauer, Mantle's platoon talking teammate.

"Inclined to Sulk"

Bauer was quoted as having said in a talk to 600 baseball fans at the annual St. Paul Oldtimers Hot Stove league Thursday night that Mickey is a great ball player but "if you had 25 Mantles on a team you wouldn't be sure to win the pennant."

"He may not be too far wrong about that part," Mantle said with a chuckle at his home here when told of the remark. "I'm not exactly the best fielder in the world."

The Minneapolis Star Friday quoted Bauer as saying in his St. Paul speech:

"Mantle is inclined to sulk when he's not whole hog. And, when he's in a slump, he tends to let down on himself and the club."

"If you had 25 Mantles on a team you wouldn't be sure to win the pennant. I found that the only way to win is for everybody to give 100 per cent for the team."

"I wish I had Mickey Mantle's ability," Bauer said. But at his home in Overland Park, Kan., Bauer denied he had said Mantle sulked.

Earlier Mantle hinted to reporters he has laid plans for a long battle to get the 1959 contract he thinks he deserves.

He is reported to have received $75,000 last season and is asking for $85,000 this year.

Elgin Baylor Involved in Racial Episode

Charleston, W. Va. — The National Basketball association found itself involved in another segregation episode today following refusal of Elgin Baylor, Minneapolis' rookie scoring ace, to suit up for a game here with Cincinnati Friday night.

Baylor, apparently upset when he and two Negro teammates were refused permission to stay in a hotel at which the team had reservations, didn't appear in uniform although he was on the bench during the pre-game warm-up. Cincinnati won the game, 95-91.

Elsewhere in the NBA Friday night, the St. Louis Hawks snapped a 5-game Syracuse winning streak, 102-89, and stretched their own victory string to five. And the Philadelphia Warriors brought Boston's triumphant march through the Eastern division up short with a 105-98 score.

In an upset, Sheboygan Falls dumped New Holstein, 53-48, to knock the Huskies out of the solo lead in the circuit. Elkhart Lake moved into a tie for first with an 89-69 win over Valders.

Co-defending champion Plymouth led all the way until the Tigers' Al Schmidkott whipped in a medium-range jump shot with three seconds to go in the game to knot it at 45-all and send it into an overtime.

The lead changed hands in the overtime and, with 15 seconds left in the extra period, Plymouth's Jerry Klemme poured in a fielder for a 52-51 Plymouth lead. Then, with just four seconds remaining, Chilton's Pete Hoffmann drilled a medium-range fielder for the Tigers' victory margin.

Terrors Upset North For 4th Win in Row

Appleton's Bob Ferrel (10) and Sheboygan North's Randy Prange (45) battle for the basketball here Friday night, with North's "Chuck" Klauk (55) and Robin Garton (13) also in the play. The Terrors scored a 54-48 upset win.

sprain is serious enough to keep him out of tonight's game.

Lodholz, still another junior, was also an effective rebounder and shook free from his 2-game shutout streak to notch 10 vital points. Senior Bob Ferrel came up with nine points and turned in an effective floor game.

Senior Bob Roemer scored only two points but handled the ball sensationally at times and unnered the Raiders with repeated cyclonic sorties via the dribble.

Hawked Magnificently
This starting five, plus capable reserves John Faluc, Dave LaViolette and Ron Reetz, almost without exception battled fiercely and hawked magnificently on defense.

Forced to take the vast majority of its shots from outside the zone, North meshed only 25.7 per cent of its 74 floor attempts. Its figures by quarters were 5-16, 2-17, 4-14 and 8-27.

"Chuck" Klauk, North's leading scorer, managed only one connection in eight first-half shots. He came back with six "longies" in 11 second half attempts to achieve a 14-point total—the loser's top figure.

The Terrors did little better, accuracy-wise. Missing a good many "softies" on the fast break through overeagerness, they shot only 27.5 (on quarters of 3-12, 4-15, 5-1, 2-10.)

Despite the absence of high-rate shooting and smooth play, the free-wheeling game kept the fans in a constant whirl. North led for the entire first period, except for a 2-all tie. The Terrors held the upper hand for the final 2:34 of a see-saw second quarter and took a 22-21 advantage to the dressing room.

It was still touch and go until the midpoint of the third quarter. Then, Lodholz snapped a 30-all tie from the foul line and started a string of seven straight AHS free throws — three by Lodholz and two each by Nussbaum and Roemer. Randy Prange's rebound basket cut the North deficit to 37-32, but Lodholz connected from the side, and the Terrors led by seven going into the final stanza.

AHS failed to sink a basket in the last four minutes while North canned six in its belated hot streak. But the Terrors ripped through eight more free throws to make the upset bid a reality.

9 Straight Points
But with the score 32-26, the Ghosts came from nowhere to pump home the last nine points of the frame putting them ahead 35-32 going into the low scoring, but hectic, last period. Weyenberg had six of the points and Vanevenhove the other three.

Dave Ristau scored for Menasha with 7:27 left and Russ Wendt put his team ahead 36-35 at the 5:22 mark. The Ghosts didn't break into the points column until 4:07 remained when Jim Steger dunked two charity throws for a 37-36 Kaukauna lead.

Nothing went on the score-board until with 1:38 left, the Jays' Bill Ritchie put his club ahead again 38-37 with a lay-up. Kaukauna didn't get a shot away for the next 1:19 until Borchardt took aim and connected.

Before he left, Weyenberg accumulated 20 points to lead all scorers. Ristau's 12 topped Menasha.

Unofficially, the Jays hit 23 per cent and Kaukauna 27 per cent. Menasha had a 13-12 field goal edge. The Ghosts did better from the free throw line, hitting 17 for 31. The Jays missed more than they made, 12 for 28.

Note Split of Opinion on Tax Policies

Neenah's Draheim Doesn't Believe New Taxation Inevitable

Madison — The diversity of opinion in the new legislature on the issue of tax policy which will be one of the chief challenges facing Gov. Gaylord Nelson is shown in the contrary positions of two men elevated to positions of leadership by Republicans and Democrats.

Assemblyman Keith Hardie of Jackson and Trempealeau county, the new floorleader of the Democratic majority in the assembly, fears that new state taxation will be needed and favors a revision of state personal income tax schedules and the enactment of a payroll withholding tax plan.

But Sen. W. A. Draheim of Neenah, tabbed for the chairmanship of the powerful legislative finance committee by the Republicans in control of the senate, doesn't believe that new taxation is inevitable, opposes a tax withholding plan in any event, and believes the state must move in the direction of a sales tax.

Hardie said he favors a revision of all the brackets in the normal income tax, on a graduated basis, rather than the addition of a surtax.

Tax Schemes
Draheim insists that if there is any tax revision to be undertaken, it should be in the direction of adding a sales tax to the revenue structure with some of its proceeds used to relieve the pressure of present income taxes and the personal property tax.

There are many other tax schemes talked about among legislators as the new term begins in an atmosphere that makes it plain that financial issues will dominate legislative deliberations for the next six months.

The Draheim viewpoint is significant, however, for he represents a coalition patched up just before the convening of the senate between four so-called "maverick" senators and the reduced corps of Republican "regulars". Draheim's opposition to tax withholding is probably representative of the position of the Republican majority in the upper house, which means that any such proposal by the Democratic administration would be killed in the senate.

Some Democrats privately concede that they favor withholding because it would make prospective income tax increases less abrupt and painful.

This Comparison of 1949 and 1959 male styles indicate the drastic changes that have taken place in the last 10 years. The style-wise man of 1949, left, wore suits characterized by the big double-breasted look with wide lapels, overpadded shoulders and full-legged trousers. Ties, hats, shoes and other apparel items were keyed to this "big" look. On the right, is the latest thing in masculine fashion today—the neat, streamlined look with trimmed down shoulders and narrow semi-peak lapels, cutaway coat front and slim-line trousers.

Big Change in Men's Fashions Since 1949

Double-Breasted Suits Had Wide Trousers, Big Padded Shoulders

Remember the headlines 10 years ago? A lady named Mrs. I. Woman Gets Probation for Taking Money

Milwaukee — Two years probation was ordered Friday for a 39-year-old woman accused of using embezzled funds to pay her husband's medical bills and for scalp treatment after she lost her hair as the result of an auto crash.

Mrs. Ruth L. Bell was accused of taking $22,062 from the employe credit union at the Line Material Industries company. She pleaded guilty, but her attorney said the thefts were about $12,000 instead of the amount charged.

The probation was ordered by Municipal Judge Herbert Steffes after a pre-sentence investigation disclosed how Mrs. Bell had used the money. Her husband was injured seriously in an accident.

Why is the printed word so important in advertising?

ANSWER: THE DAILY NEWSPAPER IS THE GREAT-EST ADVERTISING MEDIUM for many reasons. One of them is that it carries the power of the printed word. People believe in a message that is permanent; one that is written. They understand it better. Also, the newspaper because of its permanence lets the reader choose his own time for absorbing the message. And once put down it can always be picked up again. The message that lives is the message that is written in the newspaper.

U. S. Issues New Marketable Bond

BY SYLVIA PORTER

This past Monday and Tuesday Treasury Secy. Anderson sold to savings institutions throughout the country a new U.S. government 4 per cent bond. The bond was priced to give buyers an income of more than 4 per cent each year from now to February, 1960—the highest interest rate the U.S. treasury has paid on a bond since the '20s.

Also this past Monday and Tuesday, Anderson sold to individual savers throughout the country new U.S. government savings bonds. Buyers of these will get an income equal to 3 per cent a year after three years, and an income equal to 3 1/2 per cent a year if they hold them until maturity eight years, 11 months from now.

As one of the most persistent and vocal supporters of U.S. savings bonds since before World War II, I'm not going to start knocking the bonds at this late date. This program has been, and still is, the greatest bond selling venture of all time. It has taught tens of millions the virtues of regular saving. It has disciplined tens of millions into building precious nesteggs in the safest securities ever issued by the government. Every week millions of Americans are buying savings bonds under corporation payroll savings plans.

Record Amount
 Right now, a record $42.5 billion of the familiar "E" and "H" bonds are outstanding. In 1958 alone new sales topped $4.5 billion.

But, I also am a devoted student of government finance. And there is no point whatsoever in ducking the fact that the interest rate the treasury is now paying on its new issues of marketable bonds is far above what it is paying on its day-to-day sales of savings bonds.

The rate on U.S. savings bonds is fixed. The treasury had to fight hard two years ago to convince congress the rate should be boosted from its then ceiling of 3 per cent, but even when congress agreed it slapped on a new ceiling of 3 1/2 per cent.

This 3 1/2 per cent maximum has now become as obsolete as the 3 per cent rate was in early 1957.

We have been in a period of rising interest rates through most of this decade and the upward trend is still on. All borrowers are paying more for loans today than in many, many years — and when the treasury sells a savings bond to you, it is, of course, borrowing your money.

Two Answers
 Why, then, if the return on savings bonds is so much lower than the return available on other U.S. bonds, continue buying savings bonds?

There are just two answers in my mind — just two. The first is that the purchase of U.S. savings bonds via a payroll deduction plan will discipline you into saving little amounts regularly, and small amounts saved regularly add up to big amounts in time.

You can't buy the new treasury 4 per cent bonds in little chunks. These bonds are for big savers — pension funds, savings banks, insurance companies, savings and loan associations. You can buy savings bonds in amounts of only a couple of dollars a week. And the deduction from your paycheck is vital discipline, the regularity of saving is extremely important.

The second is that savings bonds give you absolute protection against fluctuations in market prices. In terms of dollars, you cannot lose on these bonds.

Little Protection
 You don't have this protection in marketable bonds — and the new treasury 4s can go down in price and will go down in price if business booms in coming months and money tightens. The only price guarantee the treasury gives on the 4s is that it will pay them off at $100 per bond on the due date in 1960.

You can cash in savings bonds at any time, though, and you'll never get back less than you paid. There is no market risk.

There are persuasive reasons for buying savings bonds, but they're the only ones left. No longer does the little saver get a higher income than the big fellow. Actually, he's getting inferior treatment.

If congress is to be only fair to the small buyer of U. S. Government securities, it should permit another boost in the interest payment on savings bonds — and it should act now.

Utah May Repeal 'Right to Work' Law
 Salt Lake City — A bill that would repeal Utah's right to work law is awaiting formal introduction Monday in the state house of representatives. The proposed measure would repeal a 1947 law that prohibits labor contracts which require an employee to be a member of a union or join a union in order to hold his job.

Utah's house is controlled by Democrats 42-22, but Republicans have a 13-12 majority in the state senate. Gov. George Clyde also implied he would be opposed to repeal, saying he supports the principle of right to work laws.

Worried Father Asks Return of Runaway Son—Boy Is 37
 Knoxville, Tenn. — A father with worry in his voice called the Knoxville Journal Friday night and asked if he could "run a piece in the paper about my boy."

"He ran away from home Thursday and we haven't heard from him since," he explained. "I want him to please come home."

Asked his son's age, the father replied, "He's 37."

Newly-Elected Officers of the Outagamie County Bar association are, seated from the left, A. W. Ponath, vice president, and E. A. Stecker, president. Standing in the same order are Joseph J. Shiff, secretary, and Hugh Nelson, treasurer. Walter Melchior is the outgoing president.

Seek UW Men to Head Tax Impact Study

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Gov. Nelson hopes to persuade two widely known University of Wisconsin faculty members to head his tax impact study commission, which will examine into the state-local tax structure before the new administration develops its own tax and finance program.

They are Profs. Harold Groves and W. D. Knight. Groves is a Democrat, who once had considerable rank in the old Progressive party. Knight has worked as a consultant for Republican finance committees and most recently was financial aide to former Gov. Vernon W. Thomson. Their backgrounds should provide public assurance of a non-political approach to the matter, Nelson hopes.

Some shrewd conservative observers of statehouse affairs, meanwhile, are hoping that the tax impact investigation may provide an avenue of support for a sales tax to balance the state's income and property tax programs.

Nelson has repeatedly declared, they recall, that he will be willing to "let the chips fall where they may" after the tax impact conclusions are reached.

Democratic legislators report that they are deluged with requests from local party workers for patronage jobs in the state government. They ought to get a look at the files in the executive office!

The persistent geographical prejudice in legislative politics remains as one of the most puzzling aspects of capital life. An anti-Milwaukee spirit was again observed this week in both political parties, as legislators held caucuses to plan legislative house organization. Assemblyman Huber, who was badly beaten in his bid for the speakership in the Democratic caucus, is convinced that he would have had more support if he didn't live in Milwaukee. There are signs that the rejection of Warren Grady of Port Washington as assembly GOP leader was also related to geography.

One Republican old-timer from a distant rural county boasted a little about it afterward. "We don't like those guys from Milwaukee," he allowed. "But Grady comes from Ozaukee county," he was told. "It's the same thing," insisted the oldster.

Some capital city lawyers and lobbyists who are known as Democrats, or to have friendships in Democratic circles, are being offered highly attractive lobbying retainers. Some of the bigger lobbying accounts are changing hands.

Norman Clapp of Lancaster and James Magellas of Fond du Lac, new field organization directors of the Democratic state organization, are getting early and valuable starts on their 1960 congressional campaigns, in the view of their friends. Both ran strongly last fall in their districts.

Game Clubs Push For Bounty Plan

County Board, Too, Asks State to Revive System; Cite Big Loss in Pheasant Stocking Program

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

A corpse the conservation department left for dead a couple of years ago is sporting a healthy glow these days largely through the efforts of sportsmen and county officials in the Fox river valley.

The Outagamie county board this week adopted a resolution for distribution to other county boards, state legislators and Gov. Gaylord Nelson strongly urging restoration of the wildlife predator bounty payment system. The Outagamie County Conservation club took similar action on Monday.

The Fish and Game club, used his farewell speech to urge the membership to fight for a return of the fox bounty.

The Manawa Fish and Game club at its annual meeting went on record as favoring immediate return of the bounty plan.

In the light of these developments and previous actions by other county boards and game clubs particularly in west central sections of the state, it is difficult to believe the current state legislature now in session can long ignore the virtual statewide plea for bringing back bounties.

No Cure-All
To do this, however, the lawmakers must overcome strong objections of the conservation department which looks upon bounty payments as something akin to the bubonic plague.

The consensus of outdoorsmen in east central Wisconsin is that while the county system is not a cure-all for the area's hunting ills it is better than nothing.

Spoehr expressed the opinion of many hunters here when he complained the New London club is spending money on the pheasant rearing program with no results because of the big kill in pheasants by foxes.

This, in effect, is the big complaint of the majority of hunters. Pheasant hunting was never poorer in this section than last October in spite of the fact more birds were stocked than ever before.

No Incentive
Without the bounty plan there is no incentive for groups of hunters or trappers to seek out predators, the sporting clubs contend. They take issue with the department's stand that nature will keep the number of predators in check.

Outagamie county included in its resolution a suggested schedule of bounty rates. It includes: $10 for a wolf cub, $20 for an adult wolf; $5 for a wildcat or lynx cat; $2.50 for an adult red or gray fox and $1 for a fox kit.

Moves to Ban Draining of Trout Waters

Commission Policy Seen as Blow to State Irrigators

The state conservation commission has hung out a "no trespass" warning for those irrigators and others who have designs upon the waters of Wisconsin trout streams.

A revised statement of commission policy on the protection, development and use of water contains a stronger declaration than ever before of its insistence on the protection of trout waters.

Guide in Battles
The statement will be a guide to conservation department officers, and probably private conservation clubs, in the battles about water legislation that are virtually certain to break out in the new legislature. Agricultural interests, especially, have been increasingly active in the diversion of water from streams for irrigation.

Other "consumptive" water using interests, including the tonite developers of upper Wisconsin, may collide with the commission's new definition of its duties to the recreational users of water.

Trout Habitat
But then it declares that "particularly in the case of streams or parts of streams designated as trout habitat by the conservation department, no water whatever should be diverted from them for agricultural irrigation or other highly consumptive uses which in any way will injure such wildlife habitat or the public rights in such waters."

In presenting the policy statement for approval, Commissioner Guido Rahr of Manitowish also proposed that the legislature be asked to devise machinery for the enforcement of laws against trout stream water diversion.

He said winter feeding will become urgent in the next few weeks. Pheasants are particularly vulnerable in heavy snow and sleet conditions. Club officers or Warden Odau will provide feed upon request for flocks wintering in the Falls area.

The club also discussed prospects for securing a site for a shooting range.

Next Move Up to Princeton Boaters

Commission Proposes to Close Locks to Provide Higher Water

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The next step is up to the boaters in Princeton and vicinity in the solution of the tangled negotiations about the future operation and control of the upper Fox river waterway system.

The state conservation commission in effect has laid down its terms for the proposed transfer of the waterway to its jurisdiction from the U. S. war department.

Closed Locks
Among the terms are that the locks at Princeton shall be closed, so that water levels can be maintained in the big nearby Buffalo and Puckaway lakes for the benefit of water fowl, fish and game. Acting under the pressure of boating interests, the emergency board has declined to accept those terms, and thus has thrown the issue back into the legislature.

It is generally expected that the recreational boating groups will sponsor a bill in the legislature to appropriate an estimated $100,000 to put the Princeton locks in good repair, and to provide for the operation of that boat passage for the indefinite future.

Commission Stand
Conservation commissioners' attitudes as expressed here forecast commission opposition to such a proposition. As Commissioner A. Schorger of Madison has put it "it is doubtful that the legislature will put up $100,000 to permit the movement of a few boats."

Besides its interest in water level control, the commission is convinced that its operation of the locks would be a violation of the internal improvements prohibitions of the state constitution.

The state has until July of 1960 to decide whether it wants to accept the offer of ownership of the waterway from the federal government. That means that the decision must be made by the 1959 legislature.

Bird Migration Interesting Study

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Green Bay — The beginning of a new year is a reminder to bird students to get a new notebook in which to keep records of birds seen through the year. Note observations of nesting activities of various birds, record dates of big waves of birds during migration, or any other information.

If you don't have an up-to-date list of all bird species known in Wisconsin, you'll need one. For 25 cents you can get the booklet, "Wisconsin Birds," which is a check list with migration charts published by the Wisconsin Society for Ornithology. Send your name and address along with the quarter to Harold Kruse, Hickory Hill Farm, Loganville, Wis.

The booklet lists all the Wisconsin bird species. After each bird's name is a chart showing the months of the year in which this species has been seen in the state. If you should see an oriole in December, for instance, a quick glance at the chart will show you that orioles have been seen in December before.

The chart also tells you that in the spring migration, orioles arrive here during the last week in April, and that migration of this species is heaviest during the first two or three weeks of May. This bird remains in the state as a common summer resident during June, July and August. By the last week of August the southward migration begins, but migration continues until late in September.

Space for Records
A duplicate list of birds is printed on the opposite page of each chart. I divide the space for records into about five columns, so that I can list the first date I see each species for about five years. In my last column for 1958, I promised to write about the scientific findings on bird life in recent years. I consulted the "Readers' Reference Guide" at the library on such subjects as migration, cycles, range and nesting of birds. During this last week I've been reading the stack of books and magazines I brought home.

After all my reading I've come to the conclusion that simple records kept by careful amateur bird watchers are as important as the researches being carried on and experiments tried out in laboratories. Through laboratory tests the theory that birds are guided in migration by the sun and stars was proved true—see the August 1958 issue of "Scientific American," or the November issue of "Reader's Digest."

Young Fly Alone
Just as important, however, was an observation made by the late Peter Freuchen and Finn Salomonsen in their book "Arctic Year." They found that in fall among the ducks and geese which nested in the far north, it was the old birds which headed south first, sometimes weeks ahead of the young birds. The immature birds, who had never made the flight before, made their way alone to their winter home, unguided by any "wise old gander" or drake.

So there goes another old pet legend—that the young birds follow their parents and are guided by them in their migratory flights. Amateur bird watchers probably will never make as great a discovery as this, but they do have an opportunity to add bits of knowledge needed about the remaining "mysteries" of bird life.

Records of all sorts are still needed—the location and size of heron rookeries, for one, and the length of the incubation period in some species. Gathering this information won't do anyone any good unless you make it known. Join the Wisconsin Society for Ornithology, and send your records to its magazine, "The Passenger Pigeon." If you wish to do some of this bird work.

South Dakota Gunners Have Best Bird Year

Figures compiled by the department of fish, game and parks indicate South Dakota gunners had their best pheasant hunting season in years this past fall. Field checks during the first five days of the season showed the average hunter spent 1.16 hours for each bird killed and averaged 3.56 pheasants per day.

That's roughly two classified ads for every man, woman and child in the nation. Could there be a more striking testimonial to the effectiveness of newspaper advertising? The daily newspaper is worth so much more than the few cents it costs that it could probably be sold for a great deal more—yet its price is purposely kept down so that practically everyone can benefit from it.
